After a three-hour session here today the special term of the Treutlen county grand jury, called by Judge Eschel Graham of the Oconee circuit to probe the fogging of Editor H. M. Flanders of the Soperton News, which took place February 25, by a masked band, four indictments were returned. The men indicted are Sheriff W. L. Thigpen, of Treutlen county; Henry Mc-Lendon, Raymond Lee and his son, Joe.Two of the men, Sheriff Thigpen and Raymond Lee, were able to produce the $3,000 bond required by Judge Graham and McLendon and the younger Lee were taken to the Montgomery county jail for confinement, being unable to raise the required amount.The date for trial of the four men was set for May 5 when a special term of the court will be convened.
Other true bills were also returned against the men charging them with burning Sheriff Thigpen's car, which investigating officers have intimated was the one used by the masked men who whipped the editor last month.Bonds Are Set.
Judge Graham, presiding, named bonds of $3,000 against each of the men on the "assault with intent to murder" counts, and placed their bond at $200 each on the other charges.Warrants for the men were turned over to County Coroner R. A. Dukes for service. He was directed to secure the assistance of Sheriff G. F.

CHAPMAN'S PAL,
IN DARING ESCAPE,
LEAVES PRISONMemories of Gerald Chapman's sensational escape from the Atlanta federal penitentiary were brought back to mind Monday when Frank Grey, who went over the wall of the prison with Chapman, was released from the penitentiary on the expiration of his sentence.Grey's moment of freedom from Chapman was brief, as he was back in prison the day following the escape. As a result of the escape, Grey lost his good time and had to serve the full five years of his sentence.Entering prison on March 28, 1922, on charges of passing a forged postoffice money order, Grey escaped with Chapman over the wall of the prison on March 27, 1923, in one of the most sensational and daring breaks in the history of the penal institution.
Grey was given transportation to New York, from which point he was sentenced.

Prepare for Outdoor Life

Your house may be well ventilated, but even with the windows and doors open, it isn't like being outdoors; and now that the pleasant, sunshiny days of Spring are here you should plan to be outdoors as much as possible.Get your porch fixed up so it will be attractive and pleasant. Purchase the articles you need for outdoor work and recreation; build up your health by natural methods.Read The Constitution advertising and news in the morning; do your shopping early and have the afternoon and evening for outdoor recreation, sports and amusements.
Merchants are already offering you in Constitution advertisements the very articles you need, and you will observe that they are priced right.ADVERTISING IN THE CONSTITUTION PAYS

Their Sticks.Annapolis, Md., March 21.—(AP)— High-pressure fire hose halted a riot of nearly four hundred Johns Hopkins university students here tonight in the shadow of the Maryland state-house, after shots had been fired by police and an appeal had been made to the governor for the national guard.
Approximately thirty students were injured, several seriously, and damage estimated at $3,000 was done to the National Guard armory, where an attacking force of Johns Hopkins sophomores attempted to break up the annual freshmen class dinner. Nine were arrested and other participants in the riot were being sought.Most of those injured escaped arrest.
Three were taken to Annapolis emergency hospital for treatment.
They were:John Grayson Turnbull, of Towson, Md., possible fracture of the skull by a blow from a policeman's stick.
Gladstone Beadenkopf, Baltimore, struck behind the ear by a patrol-man's stick.Erwin K. Gordon, Baltimore, injuries to head and neck suffered in a fall down a stairway.
Baldwin Street, of Baltimore, suffered a broken arm, but broke away from persons who took him to a drug store for treatment.The Annapolis armory, after two hours of fighting, was almost wrecked.
Nearly every window in the structure had been broken, and the outer walls were pitted by bullets fired over the heads of the rioters by Annapolis police in their initial attempt to stop the fight. The revolver fire had no effect, and after emptying their guns the police jumped into the fray with their sticks.

WORK HAS STARTED

ON LAST STRETCH
OF MACON HIGHWAYGriffin, Ga., March 21.—(Special).
Work has begun on the last link in the pavement of the state highway from Marietta to Perry. This link is in Henry county and extends from Hampton to the Spalding county line and is 2,375 miles. The contract has been let to the Hopper-Winston company of Montgomery, Ala., and the paving will cost approximately $42,000.The detour is the old road from the Spalding county line to Hampton and is in good condition. The pavement will be completed by May 15 if all conditions are favorable and will be opened three weeks from that date, it is stated.Another stretch on the Macon-Atlanta highway under construction is about 8,500 feet near Smar, which will be opened about April 1, it is said.
When the Henry county link is completed, the Dixie highway from Marietta to Perry, a distance of 150 miles will be the longest hard surfaced road in Georgia.Judge Rules Manufactur-

DIRECTED ATTACKSSeries of Articles Ordered by Auto Man, Suspended and Then Resumed, He Claims.Detroit, March 21.—(AP)—Attorneys in Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford haggled nearly all day over a single brief interrogation and at the end Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond made a far-reaching decision in a two-word ruling.The court's "objection sustained" kept William J. Cameron, editor of the Ford-owned Dearborn Independent, from answering this question:
"What are the facts as to whether your original plans were for a series of articles against the Jews and not against Aaron Sapiro?"Race Phase Barred.
It meant, however, according to the judge's interpretation for newspaper men, that "testimony concerning Ford's idea of the Jewish race in general will not be admissible, the case does not involve Henry Ford's idea of the race as a whole, and Ford's alleged malice towards Jews as a people can not be brought in."Judge Raymond said that the authorities on the admission of testimony concerning ideas of smaller classifications and groups of Jews were "so close together" that he would rule on the subject much more extensive study and thought.Malice in the heart of Mr. Ford inspired the articles printed in the Dearborn Independent in 1924 and 1925, accusing Sapiro of bad faith in organizing cooperative organizations among American farmers, of membership in an international band of Jews plotting to control agriculture and of seeking to spread communism, Sapiro's counsel, William Henry Gallagher, stated during the arguments.Malice Laid to Cameron.
He alleged not only malice on the part of Ford, but also in the heart of Cameron and on the part of the Dearborn Independent.These series of anti-Jew articles were begun at the direct instance of Henry Ford," said Gallagher. "They were suspended at his direction, and then started again on an order from him. This is what we intend to show."That the general tenor of the Independent articles from 1920 to 1922 was unfavorable to Jewish people was admitted by Stewart Hanley, of Ford's counsel. But he contended that there was no proof that the term
"Jew" carried any approbrium.It is our purpose to prove that approbrium articles as to acts of people are not pertinent in libel action by a person in that class," Hanley continued. "There is nothing to indicate that the writer or publisher ever knew of Sapiro's existence. They are, as counsel has said, aspersions upon the whole Jewish race."Sapiro's counsel sought to introduce the articles printed prior to the alleged libelous magazine stories to show that

FIRE OF COUNCIL TURNED ON PLAN
FOR NEW CHARTERCouncilman Russell Loses Fight To Have Referendum Date Set for May 25.Fire of city council Monday was directed for the first time against the proposed city-manager charter for Atlanta, and friends of the proposal lost a fight to have council set May 25 as the date for the referendum and also what was considered a maneuver to place the present city government on record concerning a proposed charter change to increase taxes for the school department.Councilman Horace Russell, of the ninth ward, who also is chairman of the citizens' charter committee, was floor leader for the proponents of the new charter, and parried with Alderman William B. Hartsfield, Councilman Harry York and others, who finally succeeded in blocking his attempt to force council to place the charter election on the primary ballot without first having the charter revision committee consider the paper.Mr. Russell lost his battle and the request, which came to council from him and from Miss Eleanor Raoul, secretary of the citizens' committee, went to the committee.During the debate Mr. Russell charged that council had failed to cooperate with the school department and as a result had practically forced it to the wall.This statement was challenged by several members of council, who declared that when they had only $10 to spend they did not by a $20 article as "has been the practice in the school department for the past few years."Sol Champion.
Taking advantage of every known parliamentary rule, Mr. Russell attempted to override the charter revision committee and call from the table a copy of the proposed charter amendment drafted by a special joint committee of the school committee of city council and the Atlanta board of education, which council was to approve or disapprove the paper.Mr. Russell was the only member of council who took the floor actively in behalf of the new charter referendum date. Councilman Jack average, of the ninth ward, one of his colleagues, favored taking the school department off the floor and acting on it, but he declined to declare which way he would vote in the event it was done. Mr. Russell lost the latter proposition by a vote of 5 to 17.The finance committee of council reported the paper unfavorably several weeks ago and it was tabled by vote of council. At the same time it was referred to the finance body it also was referred to the school board and another copy to the charter revision committee. Mr. Russell took the position that the committee was duty bound to report the paper out, and that it had failed to do so.He insisted that council take on the only copy of the amendment available from the table and act on it Monday.
This failed.Alderman Hartsfield argued that rules applying to other committees had never affected the charter revision body inasmuch as the state legislature meets only biennially and that that committee usually meets once a year just before the legislature meets and before the legislature meets.

Charges of "Peaches"
BROWNING WINS SEPARATION; BRIDE LOSES ALIMONY
"Vicious," Says JudgeDecision Is "Trivial

cision in the Browning separation suit brought from the principals the following reactions:Peaches: "Please don't bother me about trivial matters!"
"Ma" Heenan: "Peaches must not be annoyed. The newspapers have ruined her."Daddy: "I haven't a word to (United News.)—Edward West Browning won a separation from "Peaches" Heenan Browning by an overwhelming margin in a decision by Supreme Court Justice A. H. F. Seeger Monday.Triumph was complete for the gray-haired, 52-year-old "Daddy" of the millionaire Cinderella and litigation champion of America.Sixteen-year-old "Peaches," his wife of less than a year must start all wiser, a trifle less a believer in fairy tales than when she was just littleFrances Heenan, the pretty and impeccable daughter of Mrs. Caroline T.

Heenan, trained nurse.She can appeal. Perhaps she can sue for annulment. But it will be hard to save very much from the wreck."Daddy was right," Justice Seeger ruled in effect.Actually, the justice's decision refused her everything she fought for.
Mrs. Browning was given no alimony and her cross-complaint, with all its items of cruelty, rubber eggs, sandpapered shoe trees and honking African ganders was dismissed.Justice Seeger's decision was given out here, the scene of the prolonged dramatic clash of the Brownings, simultaneously with its official filing in the colonial courthouse at Carmel, where the opposing forces first faced each other to hearty rustic applause in January.Big money was at stake in the suit.
"Daddy's" real estate trifles have been estimated at $7,500,000. But in all the nine typewritten pages of the decision, Justice Seeger mentioned money only once. He awarded $300 to N. Otis Rockwood for his services as temporary guardian of "Peaches."For her financial hiatus takes

Council for the five students dismissed from the University of Georgia Saturday because of connection with an unofficial campus publication,
"The Iconoclast," announced late today that a compromise rather than court action would probably be sought in an effort to secure reinstatement.Earlier in the day, a report had gained circulation that an injunction would probably be sought to restrain the university officials from expelling the students. Lamar C. Rucker, attorney for the publication's staff members, said that he had been in conference with them during the day and that a "compromise" move had been tentatively agreed upon.Meanwhile, further comment from Chancellor Snelling, who announced the decision directing the youth to leave, was not forthcoming. Dr.
Snelling last night said the incident was "closed."

To Continue Paper.

Ben Cheek, senior and editor, has declared that if he leaves the university, he will continue publication of "The Iconoclast," printing it on the press of the Lavonia Times. He said the paper was issued for the purpose of bringing about a number of progressive changes at the institution and denied that it was in nature "scurrilous or not actually libelous" as an investigating committee of the faculty reported.Cheek is still at the university. He has said he would be unable to leave before tomorrow or Wednesday. The four others were also here today but were arranging to depart from the campus soon.Chancellor Snelling, it was said here today, has advised the expelled students that they may take an appeal to the board of trustees and that he will call a special session of the board if they wish it.The Iconoclast editors today stood "pat" on their statement issued last night as answer to their motives for "issuing the publication."It also declared "the so-called radical first issue (which was nevertheless truthful and reasonable) was to gain the popular ear so that such a change in the taxation system might be wrought and also mentioned other reasons for the publication's appearance as the student editors said they saw them."

Error in Quotation.

An error in the quotation of the statement yesterday said the so-called radical first issue (which was never truthful and reasonable) was to gain the popular ear. The word "never" should have been "nevertheless."Ben F. Cheek, editor-in-chief; A. J.
Mathews, James T. Barrs, Mercer Sherman and Lane Allen, publishers of the independent paper, were the students dismissed.

negative city of Shanghai, China's greatest port and most important trade center, which fell into the hands of the nationalists this morning, was seeing tonight with bitter street fighting and turbulent riots.Sitting on the lid of the boiling cauldron and guarding the 37,000 inhabitants of the international settlement, were 15,000 foreign protective forces, including 1,500 United States marines, backed by the big guns of the large international fleet in the Whangpoo river. Several times today the foreign settlement felt reverberations of the chaos reigning in the native city, but tonight it was very quiet with its residents obeying the warning to remain indoors.

Situation Grave.

The situation, created by the precipitate retreat of the northern troops and the advance of the southern forces, was one of the greatest gravity for the foreign population and its defenders. With a general strike effective and the streets filled with truculent natives, the position of the international settlement was fraught with danger.Sniping and clashes between British soldiers and Chinese troops—possibly retracting northward—resulted in the death of two British Punjabi soldiers and the wounding of ten other soldiers and police. There was no reports tonight that Americans had been involved in the fighting.Although the international settlement was quiet tonight, after a day of turbulence, the situation in the native city was chaotic. The advance guard of the nationalists, consisting of plain clothes forces, who invaded the native city this morning, were caught by the retreating Shantungese and white Russians and a reign of terror began which continued tonight. The northerners and the plain clothes men fought fiercely and many casualties were reported.

CAROLINA SUNDAY MEASURE VETOED

Columbia, S. C., March 21.—(AP)—Governor Richards tonight vetoed the act passed last week by the legislature liberalizing the existing Sunday blue laws.

The veto message was received immediately upon the opening of the senate. A motion to sustain the veto was superseded by one to postpone action until Wednesday morning, when the proponents of the act will endeavor to have it passed over the governor's veto. This would require a two-thirds majority of both house and senate, and it is believed unlikely that this can be obtained.

In his veto message Governor Richards says the act, which seeks to amend by liberalizing the present blue laws, would give South Carolina "what is commonly known as an 'open Sunday' at least as to sports," and in his opinion "is in conflict with the constitution of our state."

In concluding his message, the governor says: "There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that this attempted legislation strikes a fatal blow at one of the most sacred and fundamental pillars upon which the civilization rests, and no matter what the purpose may be, modifies or amends the Ten Commandments of God. Feeling as I do, I refuse to be a party to this piece of legislation by subscribing thereto."

The measure would have permitted participation on Sunday in all sports except those of a boisterous and commercial character, a wording which

The bill also would have legalized the sale of gasoline, ice, medical supplies and other commodities described as essentials, except during church hours—all of which are now prohibited under the age-old statutes. The sale of ice cream, soft drinks and tobacco would have continued to be prohibited.

SUNDAY CASE TAKEN TO SUPREME COURT

Columbia, S. C., March 21.—(AP)—No more Sunday golf will be tried for violations of South Carolina's ancient Sabbath laws until after the state supreme court passes upon the question of whether the links game is forbidden by the statute. Attorney General John M. Daniel announced.

The attorney general has appealed from an injunction issued by Judge Hayne P. Rice at Aiken, which restrained the state authorities from enforcement of the law in regard to golf.

The court will meet on April 12 and Mr. Daniel said he had agreed with the counsel for the northern golfers who secured the Aiken injunction to ask for a hearing on the case on its opening day.

WIDOW CONFESSES MURDER OF HUSBAND

him because she feared his love for her was cooling.

As her nerves gave way under police grilling today, Mrs. Snyder, a vivacious blonde 13 years younger than the murdered husband, told away the fabric of mystery with which she and her alleged accomplice, Henry Judd Gray, of East Orange, N. J., surrounded the crime.

The clues pointing to a murder during a violent struggle, the woman's first story of how she herself was attacked by a "gigantic man with a black moustache," the portraits that first led Inspector Leahy to announce that this was a crime of revenge, lost their meaning as the slain editor's wife confessed that she and her lover had crept upstairs in the early hours of Sunday morning and killed Snyder as he slept.

Although the murderers had arranged everything in the Snyder home to give the appearance of violence, even to the extent of binding and gagging the wife so that she had to thump on the floor and arouse her 9-year-old daughter, Lorraine, to make known the crime, Gray's hotel room in Syracuse contained incriminating evidence such as a "jimmy" wrapped in cloth, rubber gloves and a torn shirt, corresponding to linen fragments found in the editor's bedroom.

If Mrs. Snyder's story is true, Gray planned his alibi with skill and forethought, murdering the husband and wished out of the way by means of chloroform, strangulation and blows on the head, upset the house to give the appearance of a struggle, bound his sweetheart to avert suspicion from her and returned safely to Syracuse, where he had registered at a hotel last Friday.

Accomplishing all this with the cunning of a Landru or a Troppmann, he then had failed to dispose of evidence so incriminating as a virtually condemned man despite his protestations of innocence.

For the rubber gloves, the "jimmy," the torn shirt were described by Mrs. Snyder in her confession to the police before Gray, a corset salesman, was sought and arrested in Syracuse.

Gray's wife and mother refused to believe him guilty. The former has retained a lawyer who issued a statement on her behalf to the effect that she received a special delivery letter from her husband, postmarked Syracuse, 5:30 p. m., March 19, 1927. She advanced the opinion that someone else of the same name had become involved with Mrs. Snyder.

The corset salesman denies emphatically that he left Syracuse between Friday and the time of his arrest, Monday morning. In letters to his wife at East Orange, Gray had given details of business engagements which would have tended to establish an alibi for him.

A "love diary," one of those inevitable documents which appear in so many murder mysteries to betray their authors, was found by the police, however. It had been kept by Mrs. Snyder, and in it she had given day-by-day details of her affair with Gray, had written of how they deceived her husband and had told of her dislike for the latter.

When the police confronted her with this little black book, two by three inches in size, the woman's nerve failed her, and she made her remarkable statement.

It was the fact that the couple had not been thorough in their make-believe after the murder that first led to the suspicion of the police towards Mrs. Snyder. Although the told of being struck over the head by a huge assailant, her head bore no evidence of a blow.

Two statements, made casually to questioners during the preliminary investigation Sunday, also played their part in incriminating the slain editor's wife.

"I like to go out on parties and have a good time," Mrs. Snyder had explained. "My husband preferred to stick around the house." Added to this was the artless remark of 9-year-old Lorraine to the effect that "papa and mamma were always fighting."

In the early hours of Monday morning Mrs. Snyder broke down and told her story.

Her husband and daughter, she said, accompanied her to a card party Saturday night, from which the three returned at 2 a. m. Sunday.

Gray was lurking in the shadows of the Snyder bungalow in Queens Village, where the art editor was a prominent and popular resident, and when Snyder went to put the family automobile in the garage, his wife admitted her accomplice to the house.

Snyder, she said, went immediately to bed, as did Lorraine. She descended to the bathroom, where her lover was hiding, and there, over a bottle of whisky, they calmly discussed plans for the murder.

"Sixteen hours, no time like the present. Things can't go on like this. I'm going to get rid of him tonight," she quoted Gray as saying.

Together they went to the bedroom of the sleeping man. Snyder, she said, was deaf in one ear and the other was buried in a pillow.

Attached Gray strike his husband on the head," Mr. Snyder said. "Then he choked him and pushed his face into the pillow to smother him. Then he put a wire around his neck and drew it tight. Then he tied his hands and feet."

An autopsy indicated that the murderer also had choked Snyder with a wire. The body was found in the morning, as the brain contained traces of a powerful anaesthetic.

Snyder probably never knew what was happening, for, in addition to the chloroform, his stomach was found to contain a large quantity of alcohol.

NEW CHARTER PLAN HIT BY COUNCIL

reports on all matters previously referred to it.

He called City Attorney James L. Mayson to the floor to sustain his position, which the city attorney did. Mr. Mayson held, however, that council could direct the committee to report on the paper if it wished, but council failed to do this.

"This unusual zeal on the part of Mr. Russell prompts me to believe that proponents of the new charter plan to use our action on the school paper against the present form of city government," he said.

No matter how we vote on it," Mr. Hartsfield said. "If we pass it, they will go to property owners and point us out as robbers who are trying to expropriate additional funds from them to keep an insufficient and ineffective school system in operation. If we fail to pass favorably on it, they will appeal to the school group charging that we are trying to bankrupt the schools and force them to close."

"I think it is wrong. Why should we take such action when the board of education which supervises the school department, has not even considered itself enough with the paper as to even consider it although they have held two meetings since it has been passed?"

"The new charter is the dream of a few misguided women, who ought to be at home raising children, but who want jobs in the city government," Mr. York declared in an address. "I am opposed to taking money from the police, fire and sanitary departments of the city government and giving it to the school department. These departments now need to be increased from 25 to 50 per cent instead of being cut to give the school department an additional $300,000 yearly to waste."

In asking council to place the charter election on the primary ticket, the citizens' committee pointed out that it would save the cost of an election. It also declared that unless the primary date was set, the committee will submit an initiative petition last fall by April 18 and hold the election by May 18.

The clash Monday in council, indicates that a strong fight will be made in behalf of the new charter, but it also developed that a concerted effort is being made to prevent a change in the city government will be prosecuted vigorously.

The proposed charter amendment which Mr. Russell wished to take from the table, provides among other things for increasing taxes in Atlanta from $1.50 per $100 as at present to $1.75. This would be divided equally between the school department, which would get half, and all other departments of the city government, which combined would get the remaining half.

Elaborate machinery for divorcing the school department completely from any responsibility to the city government also is set up in the amendment, and the school board of six members would be selected from school districts from wards of two wards each. The board now has 12 members, one elected from each ward.

RACIAL QUESTION RULED IRRELEVANT

The Independent had tried to attach approbrium to such terms as "Jew," "Jewry" and an "international band" to which it later connected Sapiro.

Letter Is Cited.

The inception of the alleged libelous articles was traced today to a letter written August 6, 1925, to Harry H. Dunn at Berkeley, Calif., by H. W. Roland, of the editorial department of The Independent.

"Don't snicker when I tell you the Jewish boys are putting the works on the farmers," Roland wrote. "It began when Barney Baruch first became interested in Kansas after he won left the white house. Since then there has been a great deal of Jewish interest in the plight of the farmer, especially as to managing their sons and bodies through the government agencies, plus the various cooperative movements."

It was contended by counsel for the motor manufacturer that the activities of Sapiro were unknown to Ford or The Dearborn Independent.

The series of letters and telegrams marked the steps of development of the first article accusing Sapiro of maltreating the California fruit growers of thousands of dollars.

It was written, Cameron testified, by Dunn, who used the pen name of Robert Morgan.

Hardest Story.

In a follow-up letter read into the record, Dunn told Roland that the story of cooperative fruit marketing was the hardest he ever had handled.

"There is no doubt that the farmers are being skinned out of thousands of dollars through man-seers and officials," he wrote. "The Gentile managers are just as efficient in swindling the farmers as are the Jews behind the movement. The farmers probably received more for their crops through the association than they would have selling individually on the open market in spite of the swindlers." As that was read Sapiro glanced at the jury and threw back his head with his face wreathed in a smile.

"I am working on the Agricultural Association of California," said Dunn, in another letter, "but the situation is very complicated. The majority of the associations (cooperatives) have proved good things for the producers, but there has been some misappropriation of funds and payments of high prices for the services of the Sapiro (Aaron and his brother Milton) and other Jews. As soon as I can prove what I know you will get the story."

Another letter said in part: "I am sending you the manuscript of the Jewish exploitation of farmers, including the acts of the Sapiros."

Cameron said the letter was not stand when court was adjourned.

Each question asked him during the day was productive of an objection, arguments and a ruling by Judge Raymond.

Jury Sent From Room.

Thrice the jury was sent from the room, and once the court warned the six women and men that they should pay no attention to statements by counsel, and depend only upon the replies of the witness. They mostly were extremely brief on the witness stand when court was adjourned.

Another time Gallagher objected to what he termed Cameron's hostile attitude.

Cameron testified that he did not have in mind the name of any of the alleged band of Jewish financiers and others mentioned in the articles which led to filing of the suit.

FOREIGNERS SHOT IN SHANGHAI FIGHT

Several great fires started during the struggle.

In the midst of the conflict, white Russians with a Shantungese armored car and Chinese soldiers were seen armed Kuomintang bodies were believed to have congregated and the artillery fire demolished a restaurant, killing several occupants. One or two shells from the native city fell in the foreign settlement, but caused no damage. One shell, a dud, fell in the Presbyterian mission without causing damage.

Tonight the streets of the entire foreign settlement were patrolled by troops of Chinese soldiers, shops and houses were closed and only a few people were on the streets.

General Ho Ying Yin, commander of the national army, was in the city of Chekiang, who has achieved one of the Cantonese chief ambitions in capture of this great city, still was expected to enter Shanghai tomorrow, leading the first nationalist division.

The British cruiser Enterprise has left Shanghai and is believed to be en route to the city of Ningpo where a general strike is in progress.

One of the most serious of the day's incidents occurred tonight when a band of Chinese soldiers, presumably attached to the retreating Kuomintang army, broke through the barrier to the north of the international settlements and began looting. Two British armored cars sped to the scene in response to calls from the police.

Lieutenant Newman, Corporal Ainslie and two soldiers were wounded although not seriously by machine gun fire which was directed at the first car. The second car towed the lending car away and the two British armored cars sped to the scene the same time returning the fusillade.

Soon after the vanguard of the Cantonese army had entered the native city this morning, the municipal council declared a state of emergency and landing parties of all nationalities represented in the Shanghai naval concentration including 1,500 marines, disembarked. The Americans are patrolling the northern and western military districts where trouble is likely to develop because of the general strike. The marines were in full equipment, including machine guns and metal helmets.

The calling of the general strike of Chinese workers was to celebrate the fall of the city. The strike apparently is thoroughly effective, all the cotton mills being closed and the transport services paralyzed.

GENERAL BUTLER ARRIVES IN TOKIO.

BY J. O. MATHESON.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Tokio, March 21.—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, the marine corps commander, arrived at Yokohama, where he received news that the Cantonese are pounding the gates of Shanghai, with agitators within the settlement defense lines striving their utmost to start something.

General Butler received no welcome from the Chinese.

Shanghai is the chief center of American activity in the Far East, if not in the entire eastern hemisphere. There are 2,000 civilian American residents in Shanghai and they represent the headquarters of about an equal number scattered all over China.

The history of the development of foreign tenancy in Shanghai begins in 1842 when the Chinese in the treaty of Nanking gave the British the right to live and trade in Shanghai.

The following year in the treaty of Peking the Chinese granted to the British the right to set apart houses and grounds at fair rates. The treaty also provided that the same rights would be granted to all other foreigners whose nationals had previously landed at Canton.

A tract of 180 acres was set aside for foreign residence. In 1849 an area was set aside for the French and shortly thereafter one for the Americans, many of whom already had been accepted in the British area. In 1854 the settlements were for a short time united under a set of land regulations issued by the American, British and French consuls, but the French consul's action was not upheld in Paris and he was forced to withdraw his signature. The French concession from that date has been administered separately from the international settlement which is British and American.

International Settlement.

The international settlement, as it is known today, was formed in 1869 by joint action of the British and American consuls under a new set of regulations in the form of a government as it exists today.

The municipal council governing the international settlement consists of more than nine hundred foreign-born persons, elected annually by foreigners owning land valued at more than $300 (500 taels), or paying an assessed rent of $6, or to householders paying an assessed rental of not less than $300 a year.

The qualification for election to the council was that the candidate be a of any nature, official or otherwise, and that he be a native-born resident. No representative of the embassy met the boat.

The marine leader has been suffering from a nerve inflammation in his back, confining him to his bed almost constantly since leaving Honolulu. He walks with difficulty and remained aboard the ship.

The general professes ignorance of what is necessary to be done at Shanghai, but promises that American life and property will be safe if 1,500 marines can do anything.

FOREIGN SETTLEMENT THREATENED BY FIRE.

Shanghai, March 22.—(United News.) 10:50 a. m. Tuesday.—Belching flames and the crackle of machine guns added to the troubles of riot-torn Shanghai today as foreign residents, temporarily safe behind barred wire entanglements, awaited with fear the outcome of the next few hours.

The scene across the boundary line, in the Chinese native area, was one of confusion as armed Chinese civilians, soldiers and police milled about in disorder.

At 10 a. m., General Pi Shou-Chen, who fled when the city's fall became imminent, issued a circular telegram announcing that he had gone over to the southern side. Upon his promise to desert the northern cause and accept the orders of General Chiang Kai-Shek, commander of the victorious southerners, he was made commander of the forty-first Kuomintang army unit.

Little effect has been made to check the fires in the Chapei native district and as the flames increase there is grave fear that they will spread across the boundary into the foreign settlements.

It is reported that American marines have declared that if called into action they will gladly serve under General Duncan, the British commanding officer.

weight of the evidence was against Mrs. Browning's charges that her husband behaved in an unhusbandly manner.

The justice ruled that charges of perjury against Browning had been successfully contradicted. He not only spent considerable money, but he introduced his wife in "good society."

Charges "Vicious."

Not only was "Daddy" cleared of being a bad husband by Justice Seeger's decision, but his name was vindicated of "Peaches" charges in regard to Dorothy Sunshine Browning.

"Insinuations as to improper conduct on the part of the plaintiff with the young adopted daughter, Dorothy, were groundless and particularly vicious," Justice Seeger said.

Some other high points in the decision were:

"She became tired of her aged husband and preferred alimony to his society."

"The act of leaving was a trick."

"She enjoyed the foolish publicity."

Chinese Dissatisfied.

The Chinese, for several years, have been dissatisfied with the governmental arrangements. In the international settlement, which contains 8-23 square miles, and the French concession which contains four square miles, the total foreign population is only 36,800 while there are 1,099,500 Chinese. The Chinese pay four-fifths of the taxes. The foreign residents are in the municipal council. They have been offered three, but have refused.

In the courts reform already has been made. For some time, Chinese magistrates have heard all cases which concerned Chinese alone. But recently the settlement authorities have agreed to resign the Shanghai consular court, set up by the provincial authorities, which will try all Chinese defendants, even when foreigners are concerned as plaintiffs, complainants, or employers, provided, however, that in the first two instances the consular authority may send an official to sit with the Chinese judge.

The foreign residents in Shanghai, and particularly the British and Americans, have not restricted their residence to the international settlement. They have moved westward, toward the metropolis to the more attractive areas around the suburbs of Jiesfield and Sicaewai. It was from these places that the British recently recalled all the foreign residents as the Cantonese approached the city. The international settlement police have for several years extended their patrols out beyond these suburbs.

CHARGE DENIES CABAL FOR DIAZ

Washington, March 21.—(AP)—Lawrence Dennis, former American charge in Managua, added his evidence today to official denials that Washington had maneuvered secretly to bring about the resignation of Adolfo Diaz as president of Nicaragua, while outwardly maintaining an attitude of neutrality between factions. "I know nothing of any mysterious instructions," Dennis said. He denied flatly that he ever had been told to seek the elevation of any individual to the Nicaraguan presidency. Secretary Kellogg, some days ago, denied having sent orders to that effect. The charge was reticent about his plans. He resigned by wire some time ago, making certain criticisms of the foreign service promotion system, but has withdrawn his resignation, temporarily at least, at the department's request. Dennis will go on 60-day leave status in a few days, and the state department is pressing him not to renew his resignation. Stokely Morgan, chief of the department's Latin-American division and Dennis appeared in agreement that the only instruction sent the latter as to who might be elevated to the presidency had to do with three candidates being considered by the Nicaraguan congress. Dennis said he was informed that none of the three, including Diaz, was ineligible. The effect of that message was to insure American recognition for whichever of the trio the congress finally selected and President Diaz, he said, therefore, was recognized.

NEW MEXICAN NOTE RECEIVED BY U. S.

Washington, March 21.—(United Press.)—The state department has received a communication from the Mexican government. Officials declined to discuss its contents but it is not believed to deal with the oil and land law dispute. Mexican Ambassador Teller, just returned from Mexico City, is expected to confer with Kellogg over the oil dispute this week.

NEGRO YOUTH HELD IN REPORTED DEATH OF HIS EMPLOYER

Perry McLean, negro, of Cartersville, Ga., was taken into custody by Patrolman W. C. Hardy, Monday afternoon as he stepped from a train at Cartersville, where he was held at police station on a charge of suspicion.

McLean was arrested on information said to have been given by him to members of the train crew that he had killed Ed Kelly, transfer man of Cartersville, Ga.

Efforts to confirm the report of the crime said to have been committed at Cartersville, proved futile at an early hour Tuesday morning.

When questioned at police station by detectives, relative to the alleged crime, McLean denied any knowledge of it and stated that Ed Kelly, his employer, was not dead.

SOUTHERN PLANS
COLUMBIA SHOPS TO COST MILLION

Columbia, S. C., March 21.—(AP)—That the Southern railway, at an early date, would begin the construction of shops at Andrews yard, near Columbia, to cost not less than a million dollars, was announced here today by W. L. King, division superintendent of the Southern. Mr. King said he expected to receive the plans and layout for the proposed shops on Wednesday and that work would be begun without delay. The shops will cover at least 300 acres, Mr. King stated.

ALDERMAN COUCH ASKS REELECTION

Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the past nine years member of general council from the fifth ward, Monday announced his candidacy for reelection subject to the city democratic primary May 25.

J. ALLEN COUCH.

Mr. Couch has held many important committee assignments during his long term of office and bears the distinction of never having missed a single meeting of council during his tenure of office. He is the oldest man in council in point of service.

He has announced to succeed himself on his record, and Monday invited his friends to scrutinize with minute care his official acts. At present he is chairman of the school committee of city council, and a member of the finance, sanitary and other minor committees.

During the last mayor's campaign, he was runner up to Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, but after the political fight was ended, pledged his support to the mayor, "reserving only the right to follow the dictates of my conscience in moral issues."

HARDY WILL ASK SECOND TERM
ON CITY COUNCIL

Jack Hardy, youthful member of city council from the sixth, Monday announced his candidacy for reelection to the post of councilman, which he has held since the first of the year. Mr. Hardy was named in the city primary last September to fill the unexpired term of Councilman M. F. Dowdy, resigned. That position expires January 1, and Mr. Hardy is seeking a full term.

Hardy bears the distinction of being the youngest member of the city's governing body, and was one of the staunch champions of the Luckie, Orme and Courtland street widening and repaving projects, all of which have been approved by the city and two of which already have received financial assistance from the county.

He is connected with the Southern railroad. In addition to being prominent in fraternal and church circles, he is one of the most popular members of council.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

The aldermanic board Monday gave its unanimous sanction to every paper passed to it by city council, and this morning all measures considered favorably Monday by general council will be passed to Mayor I. N. Ragsdale for approval.

NON-PARKING SPACE SET ASIDE BY COUNCIL

Council Monday voted to set aside a 50-foot non-parking space in front of the Medical Arts building on Peachtree street in order to permit physicians to load and unload patients. Another paper brought to council by the park committee posts a standing reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of any person damaging park property. It was pointed out by Councilman John A. White, of the fourth, who is chairman of the park committee, that the city loses several hundred dollars worth of material each year through the vandalism of persons visiting the places of amusement.

Your Smile

will show dazzling clear teeth if you remove dingy film this way

This simple, NEW method removes the stubborn film that hides the natural beauty of your teeth and imperils healthy gums.

TEN years ago dull and dingy teeth were seen on every side. Today they are becoming a rarity. Note the gleaming smiles you see now wherever your eyes turn.

Please don't believe your teeth are "different"; that they are naturally off color and dull. You can soon correct this condition with this new way.

Modern science has discovered new methods in tooth and gum protection. Leading dentists advise them. In fairness to yourself, make the test offered here.

Do This—Remove that dingy film; it invites ugly teeth and fosters gum disorders

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film.

That film is an enemy to your teeth and gums. You must remove it. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy look. Gums by the millions breed in it, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Tooth and gum troubles now are traced largely to this film. Old-time methods could not successfully combat it. That's why tooth and gum troubles increased.

Note the difference in teeth and gums

In Pepsodent, dental science has provided two effective film combatants. They curdle the film and remove it, then firm the gums.

Now what you see when that film is removed—the clearness and whiteness of your teeth—will amaze you.

Old methods of cleansing fail in these results.

Thus the world has turned, largely on dental advice, to this new method.

It will give you the lustrous teeth you wonder how other people get. It will give you better protection against tooth and gum troubles.

Mail the coupon. A 10-day tube will be sent you free. Use it three times daily—morning, evening, at bedtime—then note the remarkable difference in your teeth and gums.

FOUR INDICTED FOR ATTACK

Flanders, of Emanuel county, and Sheriff McRae, of Montgomery county, in making the arrests. James L. Gillis, former state senator, is foreman of the grand jury. Solicitor General H. M. Moyer, of Hawkinsville, is conducting the cases before the grand jury. Judge Eschel Graham, of McRae, who is presiding, in charging the grand jury, said that the county of Emanuel was as free of citizens attempting to take the law in their own hands as any county in his circuit. He declared that he wished to congratulate the county in its stand for law enforcement.

The men indicted were arrested several days ago by Sheriff Flanders. Emanuel county officer, and he made charges similar to those upon which indictments were returned today. The charges following the flogging of the editor last month, when he was taken from his automobile, near here, by several masked men and severely whipped. He said his assailants told him he was whipped because of an editorial he had written in his paper. The Soperton News, deprecating the crime, which was sweeping "Soperton, Georgia and the nation." Since the flogging he has been confined to his bed, until yesterday, when it was announced he would be able to appear in court to press the case.

Cannot Trust Mob. Some of the high spots in the charge of Judge Graham to the grand jury were the citing of a part of the constitution of the state defining the rights of a citizen and the laws that "furnish us protection while we sleep, while we work, and while we worship."

He said he had learned long years ago that "we could not trust the mob and when citizens take the law in their hands, no matter what their motive, they become a mob. Mobs cannot be trusted for they move without rule of law or reason," he added. "We are a free people, free because none here had to leave a guard to protect his home; none of us had to take our sleep last night with a guard outside and none of you had to come here today under guard. In this land of freedom, we must be on our guard and preserve the constitution and the law of our land."

"Having learned of a recent flogging in your county you are called together to investigate. Only a few weeks ago you were congratulated from this bench for having a county free from reports of such conditions and from information at hand I believe your county, Troulen, is as free or freer from the citizens taking the law in their own hands as any county in this, the Oconee circuit. It is your duty to make investigation of this flogging, which is an isolated case and if you find such did happen to try to ascertain who the parties were who took part and make such indictments as you find and let the law take its course."

Following the indictments, the grand jury was adjourned subject to recall.

FLOGGING CASE SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

Lions, Ga., March 21.—(AP)—Minor cases were disposed of rapidly in Toombs county superior court in clearing the path for calling of the case against five men tomorrow charged with participation in the flogging of the Rev. J. T. Jones, near here, last year. Jones was told by his assailants that he was beaten for "immorality," according to those investigating.

Attorneys for the prosecution and defense announced this afternoon that the case would likely go on trial tomorrow morning, with the selection of a jury occupying several hours.

Mack New, L. J. Edenfield, Hugh Taylor, Tom Taylor and Willie McDilda were the five indicted on various charges in connection with the whipping of the minister. Their counsel have announced that a plea of not guilty would be entered and said that they had "strong" evidence to present to show that the defendants had no connection with the flogging.

New is a merchant and the other four are members of prominent families in the county.

Day by day, in every way, we feel more positive that someone ought to organize a rescue party for Senator Dill.

Yeast and Iron Advised by Eminent Medical Authorities

"Skinny" People Need These Two Builders

Science has definitely proven that Yeast is one of the most marvelous aids to the proper assimilation of our food. Modern foods, that are cooked and canned and go through so many processes before they reach the table, are lacking in the proper amount of vital elements. As a result, you may be actually starving yourself, even if you eat three hearty meals a day. IRONIZED YEAST provides the yeast and iron your system needs for full strength and health. People have long known the value of yeast and doctors have prescribed iron for many years, but the combination of the two in this easy-to-take tablet form makes one day's treatment of IRONIZED YEAST mine times better than a cake of ordinary baker's yeast or iron alone. That's why IRONIZED YEAST works so quickly and builds up so many pounds of good firm flesh. So, get a generous test treatment—50 nice tablets to a handy bottle—no nasty, pasty taste—no bitterness—no upset stomach.

Galluses Back In Style, Say Chicago Tailors

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution.) Chicago, March 21.—Notwithstanding the desperate fight against suspenders for men "galluses" are coming back strong, assert Chicago tailors and haberdashers.

In the last ten years tailors said the waist line of men has decreased in marked degree.

Men have ceased gorging themselves, take more exercise and get out of doors more. As a result hips and paunches are disappearing and suspenders are back for the reason that nothing is left on which to hang a belt, the tailors would have us believe.

The warm weather of the past few days has brought them out in large numbers he said. They were the common diamond backs.

DIES OF EXPOSURE;
FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services for Mary Belle, an infant waif, who died of pneumonia at Grady hospital Sunday night after an illness of several weeks, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the chapel of Harry G. Poole, Rev.

C. H. Stauffer is to officiate, and interment will be in Greenwood cemetery. Little is known of Mary Belle. On a bleak morning several weeks ago a county patrolman found her lying in a paper box by the roadside near Mountain View. He carried her to Grady hospital wrapped in his overcoat. Here the nameless infant became a favorite with white coated doctors and nurses who christened her "Mary Belle." But the best of treatment was unavailing. Pneumonia set in and death followed. Mr. Poole is paying the funeral cost, and the pastor will contribute his services, while Atlanta's florists have dispatched banks of spring flowers to the chapel.

OUR STRENGTH AND SONG—
"The Lord is my strength and song, and He is become my salvation. He is my God and I will praise Him; He will exalt Him."—Ex. 15-2.

PRAYER—O God, Thou hast brought us deliverance and made Thy strength perfect in our weakness.

DR. KLEIN'S WISE WORDS.

In a notable address recently in Atlanta, Dr. Julius Klein, director of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, urged diversification, not only of agricultural, but of industrial products. He said:

"Diversification is the key to assured regular prosperity—the safest and sanest corrective of the violent gyrations of the business cycle. Foreign trade affords an invaluable contribution to such diversity and we can, therefore, gauge the foreign trade prospects of any territory by appraising the multiplicity of its products and of their possible overseas markets."

No man in America, perhaps, is as conversant with our foreign trade as Dr. Klein, who is the chief of that division of the department of commerce, which division in itself is one of the paramount functions of that branch of government. Therefore, he speaks knowingly, and his words are of tremendous significance at this time.

Agriculture and industry are, or certainly should be, closely coordinated. That is why thoughtful people of an agricultural section—like the southeast—advocate the decentralization of industry—that is, the distribution of manufacturing plants throughout the territory, rather than a concentration, as is seen in Pittsburgh and Detroit.

Atlanta wants a larger pay roll and goes after it. But Atlanta today would rather see a textile plant established at some other point in its trading area than in the direct suburbs of Atlanta.

It helps the section in which it is thus established, and it helps Atlanta to just as great, or to a greater extent, than if within its own environs.

By the same token thoughtful people advocate a variety of industries to consume a variety of raw products, which are either provided by nature, or which can be produced from the soil.

As an illustration, shoe manufacturing was at one time confined almost wholly to New England. Today the south—the Atlanta territory—is taking a commendable lead in the manufacture of shoes.

Some understanding of how diversity in industry can promote agricultural diversity may be gathered from any list of manufacturing enterprises in most any of the northern states.

Take the great pickle, sauce, jam, preserve industries! Why not in the south, giving market opportunities to the farmers who can grow cucumbers and tomatoes, etc., as profitably in Georgia as in any state in the union. American exports enormous quantities of such manufactured articles.

Take the canning and packing industries. The south is making headway, but most of the canning plants fall. Why?

With all of the pulp wood in the south, why do we go to Canada or to Denmark or to Sweden or Switzerland to buy newsprint?

Georgia leads the nation in fine clay. Why do we sell a ton of clay suitable for refined ceramic products for less than we pay for a six-ounce vase that is made in Cincinnati and shipped back to our retail stores?

We need to diversify in both industry and agriculture, as Dr. Klein has suggested, and by proper coordination both can be made to prosper together.

If the trouble in China doesn't soon abate we will be compelled to go over there and take charge of things where the good oil wells are located.

A negro stole a plug of tobacco in Atlanta, jumped bail bond and it will cost the state $200 to return him to the court. A man in Jacksonville stole a quart of milk and his fine and costs totaled $72.36. A rich man can rob the government of a million or so and a jury apologizes for the trouble the courts have made for him.

NEW DAVISON-PAXON STORE.

The formal opening yesterday of the new Davison-Paxon department store emphasizes Atlanta's position as the retail center of the south.

This is one of the largest, finest and best appointed mercantile establishments in the entire country, and is only one of many great department stores in the city.

Not only from all sections of Georgia, but from all the southeastern states, thousands of people come to Atlanta every week to "shop."

Here they find the most modern styles, the greatest variety of merchandise, and the supplies that meet all their demands, at fair and reasonable prices.

The most exacting as to exclusiveness, the most economical—everybody—can find in Atlanta exactly what their respective requirements may be. Hence the tremendous growth of Atlanta as a retail center.

This fact necessarily accentuates Atlanta's position also as a manufacturing and jobbing center.

The Davison-Paxon store is affiliated with R. H. Macy and company of New York. The latter is one of the best known mercantile establishments in America, and is of peculiar interest to Georgians.

One of the founders of the establishment was Lazarus Straus, who opened a small dry goods store in Talbotton shortly after his arrival in America long before the civil war.

He later moved his business to Columbus, and there enlarged it. He subsequently joined R. H. Macy in the New York establishment that has since become internationally known.

The sons of Lazarus Straus—Oscar, Nathan and Isidor—became famous not only as merchants but as leaders in public affairs, and as philanthropists and financiers.

The sons of Isidor—grandsons of Lazarus Straus—are the executive heads of R. H. Macy and company today.

Two of them, Jesse and Herbert, with Mrs. Jesse Straus, are visitors in Atlanta, attendant upon the opening of the great new establishment of Davison-Paxon company.

Georgia extends to them a cordial welcome, and congratulates them, and Beaumont Davison, Colonel Fred J. Paxon, Raymond E. Kline, and all their associates, in the opening of this great store—an outstanding event in the business history of the state.

WORLD-FAMOUS GUEST.

Atlanta extends a cordial welcome to Sir Henry Lunn, of London, who is internationally famous as a publicist, author and philanthropist.

Monday evening he was a dinner guest of the Friars club, being the principal speaker on that occasion.

This evening he will address the student body of Emory university.

Sir Henry Lunn is one of the most remarkable men of the world. With a great fortune amassed from business enterprises, he placed the whole, a year or more ago, into trust funds to be used for religious development.

He, more than any other one man, was responsible for the universal Christian conference which was held in Stockholm in 1925. He was instrumental also in calling the "world conference on faith and order" to be held in Lausanne, Switzerland, in August.

Atlanta welcomes him as a guest.

The average man will take a gamble on oil shares but leaves it to the tenant farmer to take the gamble on plow shares.

The death of Mrs. Adeline Backus, of Tallapoosa, at the age of 112 years, is another evidence that you can live longer in Georgia because you live contented.

A professor of chemotherapy at the University of Pennsylvania has discovered a powerful antiseptic which will prolong life 25 years. At least it will cause you to lead a clean life.

There are to be eight camps in Florida for the use of many units of government employees to check the smuggling of aliens into the state. The tourist business will be given a serious setback.

It is not to be inferred inasmuch as Florida has sent out three exposition trains to tour the United States, that Florida is going to the people if they won't come to them.

Four hundred Americans at Durban, South Africa, heard a musical program from the United States, radioed 9,000 miles. The program "came in fine," so it was cabled to the press. This proves they are Americans.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

New York, March 21.—The rank and file of the New York police department are as fine a breed of men as you'll find anywhere on earth.

The other day one of them rushed into a burning tenement house on his post and in an endeavor to haul to safety a bit of human driftwood, trapped by the flames, gave up his life. He and the tenement lodger had never encountered each other before they met in their death struggle on the edge of eternity. And when it was all over they found the policeman's charred form shielding the body of the stranger.

Rushing into the blazing building the policeman probably never gave a thought to his wife and 4-year-old child or to the chance of his losing out.

Calculation never made a hero. He was a fine-looking young fellow. With all the sophistication one takes for granted in the life of a New York cop, the clean, boyish idealism that flashed from his laughing eyes was no less a tribute to the man who bore him and to the wife who shared his joys and sorrows, than to the town that had produced such a man.

One of the papers carried a picture next day of his kid standing by the window of the modest home, with his dad's cap on the back of his head, waiting for the "fatty" who was never to return.

Just a story that a week from now will be forgotten.

A more cheerful yarn deals with a retired traffic cop and his horse, Bingo.

Bingo was one of the speediest nags in the department. For 13 years he clamped the "red" lights of the town and then old Father Time tapped him somewhere in the vicinity of the fetlock of his off foreleg, and the good "Bingo" appears today in the police records headed "Retired."

Six years ago his boss, Tommy Loefer, was discovered by a less motorist and was carried to the hospital unconscious. When the light returned the horse's fate was his first consideration. Bingo was his.

He was? They told him no, and later he got well; but never well enough to return to uniform. He was retired back in 1922.

Tom Leonard and Bingo were a marvelous pair. Bingo was every thing as a horse that Tom was as a man. The commissioner had "well pointed," and the commissioner had said of Tom that he was "the goods." Cynic, but satisfying.

The young woman who great wealth had not blinded her to lebanian worth got a flash one day of Tom Leonard's side. The sun was shining, but not a whit brighter than the sun and its rider. Tom's eyes and those of the young woman met, and since love in sequel works with fate, they were married.

After the accident the former patrolman and his wife retired to their estate at White Lake—a comfortable home, green trees, suggestively named, green trees, suggestively named.

Mrs. Leonard is as good a judge of the mettle of men. She had ridden in several horse shows and naturally at White Lake the stables are not the least of the equipment.

When the time comes a month or so later five years Tom Leonard would want to Jack Meehan, head of the mounted squad of the police department, and he would want to know the phone. The query always was the same: "How about Bingo?"

The answer came the other day when one of the horses came to the departmental vet. as unfit for further service, stood at last the record of a bay, 20 years old, 15.3-2, of the mettle of men. She had ridden in several horse shows and naturally at White Lake the stables are not the least of the equipment.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

Two Noble Citizens Whose Lives Have Been Lessons in Righteousness.

Nearly three thousand years ago the wisest man of our race said "the hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness."

After so long a time he could have found fresh indications of his statement here in Atlanta.

He attended the 92d birthday celebration of two of our honored fellow-citizens, Judge George Hillier and Alexander Campbell Bruce.

Those two venerable gentlemen have lived through the life of the city by more than a dozen years and have residents in it for largely more than half a century. Their walk among us has been exemplary of every characteristic of noble and efficient citizenship.

It would not have been amiss or disproportionate to have made their birthdays occasions of public civic celebration.

The only other notable Georgian in their class that I can recall is Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, who years ago the distinction of having been the first woman in our American history to occupy by right a seat in the senate of the United States.

All three of these worthy gentlemen illustrate how profitable it is to walk in "the way of righteousness," to observe the life-inspiring commands of our Creator, and to deny the flesh its constant occasions of temptation to join in the revelries and riotings that cut short the days of the ungodly.

An Apostle of Absence.

Of the ways and works of Judge Hillier a more interesting and instructive volume might be written.

While yet only a handsome and ambitious youth he came to infant Atlanta from Wayne county to represent the temperance sentiments of his neighbors in a "cold water" celebration that was held at the old Walton spring. He was one of the orators of the occasion and easily bore away the chief prize of the day. Already he was marked by the elders as a promising young man.

The practice and prestige of his temperance principles grew with his years and when, in the 50's Atlanta made her first essay with local option law against saloons it was Judge Hillier who helped to lead her and who chose for her "dry" mayor.

Judge Hillier is the only known survivor of the famous Charleston convention of democrats in 1890 that divided the party that year, led to the election of Lincoln to the presidency, and precipitated the war between the states.

In that war he served with valor and honor, emerging from the dolorous surrender with the rank of major and the commendation of his superiors. He was one of the United Confederate veterans who are to be in annual session in Tampa April 5 to 8.

Judge Hillier served our immediate citizenry in the state legislature. Some of the most constructive acts of those perilous days originated with him and were so wisely constructive in restoring order and justice that they remain in the statutes to this day.

An Upright Judge.

The providence of God and human discernment can scarcely give to any people a greater blessing than an upright judge who leads the people in the ways of righteousness.

That they have been honored of God with years far beyond usual human experience should powerfully attest the wisdom of their great-grandfathers in their choice of him as their judge.

When they saw him in the street, witnesses to that divine truth will have abundantly testified unto us.

But, rather, Mr. Bruce won the confidence and admiration of his fellow citizens by the golden qualities of his character as a man and a Christian. Without egotism or noise he sincerely associated himself with those social, religious and civil efforts that make for righteousness in the community. Short Skirts Aid Dry Law, Police Prove

Chicago, March 21.—In the first place, the woman wearing a skirt down to her ankles. Like a man with whiskers and a derby hat, this placed her under suspicion.
Sergeant John Gallagher and his squad of detectives assumed that she was either a defector or that the long skirt was a camouflage.
So, watching her closely, they were rewarded when a gust of wind lifted the skirt and disclosed two flat copper galleons attached to her belt and hanging under the skirt. As a result the woman, Mrs. Marianna Bernardi, was arrested and the cans were found filled with wine. Later the officers went to her home and arrested all members of her family as bootleggers.

CHILD IS CHAINED TO BED FOR GOING TO PICTURE SHOW

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
Columbus, Ind., March 21.—Ella May Smith, 12, has been taken from the home of her parents on order of the Bartholomew circuit court, and placed in the Bartholomew County Orphan's home. Complaint was made that the girl's father had chained her to a bed as punishment for attending a motion picture matinee.
The chain, it is said, was unusually heavy and the ankle around which it was fastened became considerably swollen.

1887-1927

Today we are celebrating our fortieth anniversary... on March 22, 1887, having opened our doors to the public. These years have been filled with many interesting details in the making of the success and growth which is today ours. Day by day we have adhered to the strictest policy of honest dealing, knowing our goods and representing them exactly as they were. WOMAN SLAYER SEEKS NEW TRIAL

Argument in three murder cases was presented before the Georgia supreme court Monday and a similar number, including one of a woman, are expected to be argued at tomorrow's session.

Counsel for Mary Mack, convicted last September of slaying Tempa alias Aiken Thame, will tomorrow seek to obtain a new trial for her client, who was given the death sentence. The woman claimed her escort was attempting to rob her when she stabbed him to death with a knife. The murder occurred on the Augusta highway, the court records show.

Constitutionality of the state's election law was attacked in briefs submitted by counsel for Herbert Fenwick under death sentence in Liberty county for murder. A similar attack is expected to be made today by counsel for Oscar Mars under death sentence in Ben Hill county for the murder of his wife. Since his conviction Mars has thrice been sentenced to death by the trial judge, on October 25, 1925, October 29, 1926 and on January 17, 1927. The last stay of execution was granted by the governor, pending the supreme court's investigation of the alleged flaws in the electric chair law.

The two other murder cases presented before the higher court Monday were those of Herschel Allen, of Warren county.
Allen was convicted with his brother of the murder of an aged negro, Egan, who was sentenced to life imprisonment. Herschel Allen appealed from the decision of the lower court in his case on the ground that the trial judge had no right to refuse to accept the first verdict of the jury, that of manslaughter.

Tom Wright was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a three-year-old child, Algernon Baker, Jr., whom he ran over with his automobile. Wright claimed the slaying was accidental and unavoidable. The third murder case expected to come before the supreme court today is that of John Hill, of Wayne county. Hill was sentenced to life imprisonment for the shooting of Dan W. Westberry, following a row over alleged attentions Westberry had been paying Hill's wife, the court records show.

You Can't Afford To Take Chances; Get Protection

One killed, a motorcycle splintered, an automobile wrecked, the lives of more than a score in the balance and depending on the slender thread of chance.
That's the situation that prevailed Sunday when a party of motorcycle riders had one of its number slain, an automobile driver ran his car into a ditch to avoid disaster, and the entire group was thrown into confusion.
That was just one accident. Scores of others happened on the same day and will happen every day.
Can you afford to take chances with your head? Are you protected against the ever-mounting accident wave?

The Constitution offers you and every one of its readers between the years of 15 and 70 the famous $7,500 travel accident insurance policy issued by the North American Accident Insurance company. The cost is only $1.25 per year a fraction of a penny a day for insurance that could not be secured elsewhere for anywhere near the cost.

The policy provides for payments of sums ranging downward from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain specified accidents; heavy cash amounts for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the accidents included in the policy.

STATE BANK TAX DECISION GIVEN

Washington, March 21.—(AP)—The widely disputed questions of taxes which states may impose on national banks was materially clarified by the supreme court today in decisions in three cases from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Kentucky.

The federal law provides that state taxes upon national banks shall be the same as those imposed upon competing moneyed capital of individuals and firms.
In opinions by Justice Stone, the court held that whenever capital is employed either in a business or by private investors in the same sort of transactions at those in which national banks engage and in the same locality in which they do business, it must be construed as competing moneyed capital and that any taxes which are imposed by states upon national banks but which are not imposed upon such competing moneyed capital, are invalid and cannot be enforced.

The Wisconsin case was brought to the First National Bank of Hartford, and the Kentucky case by the Georgia-Tower National Bank, while Minnesota appeared in a case won in the lower courts by the First National Bank of St. Paul.
While Wisconsin prohibits individual

EXHIBIT TO OFFER HOUSEWIFE AIDS

The very latest labor-saving devices to lighten the work of the housewife will be shown in the six units of the "Home Beautiful" exhibition which will begin April 3 and extend through April 10. This event is sponsored by the Constitution and is given in cooperation with the most prominent merchants of the city.

The old days when household drudgery was the rule in all homes has gone for good, and numerous new inventions have aided in easing the burden of the housekeeper.

Each year these devices have been one of the strong points emphasized by the Constitution's exhibition and each year there has been something new to show.

All records for attendance are expected to fall this year as interest is increasing daily in plans for the show. More than 200,000 people, it was estimated, attended the event last year. At that time there were nine houses and many people found the exhibit so attractive that they made several visits to the homes.

This year the home at 10 Covington road, in Avondale Estates, will be furnished and decorated under supervision of the interior decorating department of the J. M. High company; M. Rich & Bros. company will be in complete charge of the decorating and furnishings at the $80,000 residence at Haynes Manor; and the other four homes, two of them at Avondale, will be under direction of Mrs. R. H. Thomas, nationally known home decorating expert, of Atlanta. She formerly lived in Richmond. This division of the work insures even greater attention to all details than has been the rule in the past, although every show has been given the highest praise for its attractiveness and completeness.

The six units of the exhibit and their location and prices follow:

10 Covington road; valued at $18,500; loaned by Avondale Estates.

So it is tonight that these boys have come here with one of the most magnificent investments in the southern states. We are glad to have them and to give them the glad hand of welcome. We hope they will visit us often and assure them that on each subsequent visit the welcome extended to them will be equally as cordial as the welcome given them tonight."

Mayor Ragsdale was presented to represent the city of Atlanta in the welcome after Mr. Howell had read a message of regret from Governor Clifford Walker who was in south Georgia and was unable to be present to deliver the address of welcome in behalf of the state.

"It is a pleasure to have a share of the honor in welcoming this great institution to Atlanta and of extending the official greeting of the city of Atlanta to these men whose vision has given Atlanta this great temple of commerce," Mayor Ragsdale said.

The mayor welcomed the visiting editors and paid tribute to the influence they wield in Georgia affairs. He paid tribute to the careers of service men, Colonel Paxon and Mr. Davison. He then announced that the Straus brothers had presented to the Atlanta police department and the Atlanta fire department a check for $500 each in appreciation of the services rendered the company during the construction of the new building by these two departments. The mayor accepted the checks and expressed the appreciation of the two departments of the gift. Miss Emily Woodward acknowledged on behalf of the Georgia Press association the gift of $500 to the Tallulah Falls school made by the Straus brothers.

On behalf of the Presidents' club, Mr. Wilkinson welcomed the new enterprise to Atlanta in a witty speech in which he told several funny stories. He declared it was a great day for Georgia when the great store of Davison-Paxon and the Georgia Press association were named as officers of the National Dry Goods association several years ago.

"It was during their association in these capacities that these gentlemen met and first discussed the possibility of an affiliation of the Davison-Paxon company with R. H. Macy & Company and later through the cooperation of Robert C. Alston and Asa G. Cannon, the Georgia Press association led to the erection of the magnificent store thrown open for the first time to the public today," he said.

Ernest Camp, head of the Georgia Press association, declared that it was a great day in the commercial annals of the state when the new store was first opened to Atlanta.

Mrs. Woodward speaks.

"It is gratifying to know that this affiliation brings together the great store of Macy and the great store of Davison-Paxon," Mr. Camp said. "I rejoice in the tie that binds the Straus brothers to the state of Georgia and in behalf of the Georgia Press association extend them a cordial welcome and an assurance of the fullest cooperation of this organization."

Mrs. John K. Ottley then was called on by Mr. Howell to present to the association Miss Emily Woodward, president-elect of the Georgia Press association. Miss Woodward expressed gratification over the fact that the Straus brothers were interested in Georgia and had come to help the people of Georgia make this a bigger and better state. She said the invitation to the Georgia Press association to the dinner was a fine gesture and commended the interest shown by the new enterprise in the activities of the association and the recognition given the Georgia papers by the new store.

Colonel Persons spoke interestingly of the early career of Talbotton of Lazarus Straus and his famous sons Isidor, Oscar and Nathan Straus.

Paul Revere spoke.

"We are going to give the Straus boys a great welcome at Talbotton Tuesday when they enter the home town of their grandfather," he said. "There are many interesting incidents to be told concerning the career of the Straus family in our town. The father of these boys was educated there and was one of the most brilliant students in the school. Nathan Straus, their uncle, was the hero of an incident during the war between the states which was similar in many respects to the daring ride of Paul Revere. Near the entrance, and as it was learned that the troops of General Wilson were moving from Columbus toward Macon to occupy the territory, young Nathan Straus mounted a horse and rode desperately for twenty-eight miles to warn the people of the danger.

Before the doors were opened crowds packed the sidewalk in front and at the side entrances, and at 9 o'clock these were given the first opportunity of viewing the fresh and beautiful stock of merchandise which the new store offered. Each department was running with the smooth regularity of a veteran organization functioning under normal conditions; every fixture and piece of furniture was in place, and a big, efficient salesforce greeted visitors with smiles of welcome.

What seemed to gratify shoppers most was the immense size of the new store, which contains more than 400,000 square feet of floor space. In addition thousands of admiring remarks were made about the beauty of the goods displayed, the tasteful decorations of the store, the subdued colors and the amazingly complete mechanical equipment of the institution.

In addition to having everything in readiness for the opening, display windows were beautifully decorated and the firm's most attractive goods were exhibited to admiring passersby.

HOTEL, RESTAURANT MEN EXTEND GREETINGS.

President Frank T. Reynolds, of the Atlanta Hotel and Restaurant association, headed a delegation from that body today to call upon the Davison-Paxon company, affiliated with Macy, to extend congratulations of his organization upon the occasion of their opening.

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon received the delegation and accepted from President Reynolds a parchment scroll upon which a message of greeting was embossed.

Members of the hotel association accompanying Mr. Reynolds were J. R. Nix, H. A. Tidwell, J. A. Dunwoody, E. D. Venable, K. A. Diekmann and Frank Malone.

The message follows:

Atlanta's present greatness, social prosperity, rising intelligence, far-reaching philanthropy, commercial position, and moral influence are but products of seeds planted long ago.

From Martha's Vineyard, with its priceless heritage and glorious future.

As in a microcosm, we see in the Atlanta of former times the portraiture of the Atlanta of today.

The past, building today for the future with possibilities limitless, unbounded.

Important names on her roster of industry are legion, but there have been none more important, more welcome, or more valuable than that to which by this inadequate gesture, welcome is bid.

"Davison-Paxon Company Affiliated With Macy"—Magic words, in truth. To sound in fullest measure the feeling all Atlanta owns toward this, our newest contribution is difficult indeed.

Atlanta's oldest business body, The Atlanta Hotel and Restaurant association, deems it the new comer's welcome, while Atlanta also is delighted; and hope is expressed for the peer which shall best the prestige which both the city and her distinguished newcomers command.

SERVICE TRUCKS SEEKING PERMIT FOR EXTRA SPEED

Tire service trucks in the future will be permitted to traverse Atlanta's streets just as fast as the machines which they serve, if Mayor E. N. Ragsdale today signs an ordinance which would permit them to travel at the same rate of speed as passenger cars. The paper will go to the mayor today.

Council agreed to the proposition of giving Atlanta motorists every convenience possible, and voted to permit them to run at the same rate of speed as passenger cars. The paper will go to the mayor today.

Regulation speed for trucks is 15 miles an hour, but friends of the paper pointed out that tire service machines are lightly equipped and are as easily and in many cases more easily handled than heavy passenger cars. They contended that patrons

SUCH CRAFTSMANSHIP IS UNCOMMON TODAY

TODAY this busy world produces few things that are built with the exactitude which rules in the construction of the Pierce-Arrow motor car.

Selected workmen, as proud of their skill and as vigilant as any guildsmen in the days of medieval handicraft, realize the unique standing of this car which they build and bend every effort to maintain and, if possible, improve.

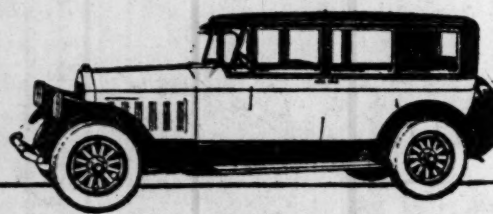

They are provided with the finest grade of tested materials. They are given every known facility which could aid in enabling them to attain the precision to which they aspire. And each Pierce-Arrow that they complete shows the effect of all this care throughout the many years it remains structurally strong, notably stylish and inexpensive to maintain and operate.

Hand-building does not make the Pierce-Arrow a high-priced car. The Series 36 Dual-Vale Six—138-inch wheelbase—equipped with 5875 and up. B. K. Booster unit, improving ease of braking, is standard equipment.

58 CASES OF FLU ON ARMY VESSEL

San Francisco, March 21.—(AP)—Fifty-eight persons are ill from influenza and four have died on board the United States army transport Chateau Thierry en route here from New York, according to word received by army headquarters here late today. The vessel is due here on Friday but is believed to be delayed and may arrive Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

A wireless message received from the transport did not state that the four deaths were due to influenza, but it was assumed that was the case. The fact of the epidemic was confirmed by Colonel A. D. P. Anderson, chief of staff of the ninth corps area. Preparations have been made at the Letterman general hospital in the Presidio to receive the patients, who will be transferred from the transport dock in a score of army ambulances. The vessel will not be detained at quarantine.

The transport carries a number of officers and their families and 578 enlisted men, 400 of whom are destined for Hawaii. There are all replacement troops. For the most part the soldiers are either recruits or men who have reenlisted.

BRITISH PRESENT ARMS CUT PLAN

BY HENRY WOOD.
Geneva, March 21.—(United News). Great Britain today submitted a complete disarmament project to the League of Nations commission.

Hardly had Viscount Cecil, British delegate, announced the plan than Paul Boncour, French representative, stated a French draft would be submitted, so the two might be studied simultaneously.

Cecil's move at the opening of the meeting marked with uncertainty due to the doubt about reception of the American three-power conference. His project, based on five fundamental points, was expected to be adopted as a basis for discussion and elaboration. The actual extent of disarmament will be fixed by the plenary disarmament conference which the league will summon when the preparatory commission has completed its work.

"As a result of work of the league's disarmament commission to date," said Cecil, "agreements have been reached largely on five fundamental points."

Five Points.

"First—Land, sea and naval armaments constitute a common problem which must be treated jointly."

"Second—A general reduction is preferable to regional reduction, especially as fleets cannot be limited in certain regions."

"Third—Reduction must affect only peace-time armaments for the purpose of limiting the power of aggression."

"Fourth—Land armaments can be limited by reducing the effective, naval armaments can be reduced by cutting the tonnage, while aerial armaments can be cut by reducing the number of aircraft."

"Fifth—Land armaments and materials of war can be reduced by cutting budgets and by other means."

BANKERS' FRAUD CASE NEARS JURY

With the mail fraud case of J. A. Sasser, Paul J. Baker, John D. Russell and L. R. Adams, co-defendant officials of the defunct Bankers' Trust company, slated to go to the jury in United States district court by noon today, the proposed settlement of the personal affairs of W. D. Manley, president of the defunct bank organization, with his creditors, has been deferred until 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

All arguments in the mail fraud case were completed with the exception of an hour and a half still due the government. District Attorney Clint W. Hager is expected to close the government's argument this morning, with the result that Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley's charge probably will give the case to the jury by noon.

Jury men were warned Monday to come to court today prepared to spend considerable time away from home and business, as the jury will have to be kept together from the time the case is handed over until a verdict is reached.

The proposed settlement of the Manley affairs was to have been considered Monday at a creditors' meeting in the office of Harry Dodd, referee in bankruptcy, but as a misunderstanding arose over the date and a number of creditors failed to show up, it was decided to defer action until Wednesday, it was said.

Under the settlement plan, Mrs. W. D. Manley will retain the Manley home, an expensive automobile, $17,000 in cash and 15 shares of E. I. DuPont de Nemours stock, while the creditors would receive other monies listed among the assets.

Jury Will Probe 'Murder' of Girl Who Still Lives

Harlan, Ky., March 21.—(AP)—Harlan county's "travesty of justice," in which a woman is alleged to have been perjured testimony conceived in jealousy, sent a man to prison under life sentence, came back before a grand jury today.

A petition for a pardon for Conley Dabney, 26 years old, under life sentence for the "murder" of Mary Vickery, 16, was being circulated today.

Judge J. C. Forester ordered the grand jury to "sit the case to the bottom."

A Veitch traveler was recently brought to Harlan county, Judge Forester said. "It is of such a nature as to horrify even the most callous. A man was indicted in this court on a charge of a brutal murder and assault of a 16-year-old girl. This man is serving time in the penitentiary under a life sentence for the murder of a girl who is alive and at the present moment is here in Harlan."

The jury decided the case upon the evidence of witnesses. One of these witnesses detailed the murder of the girl as an eye-witness. A more dastardly deed is inconceivable."

Miss Vickery, who came back Saturday with a story of having left home because she was dissatisfied, and Marie Jackson, 27, the state's principal witness at Dabney's trial, were among those expected to be called before the grand jury. Both are being held pending an investigation.

Dabney, in a statement made at the reformatory the day Miss Vickery showed up, said the Jackson woman testified against him because she did not leave his wife and two children and go with her.

Miss Jackson stubbornly clings to her story that she saw Vickery kill a man known to her as Dabney.

County officials today sought to identify the body found in an abandoned mine after the Vickery girl had disappeared.

Charles Vickery more than a year ago identified a coat and ring on the body as articles belonging to his daughter. Positive identification of the body itself was impossible, Sheriff George S. Ward said today.

Sheriff Ward said county officials were considering the possibility that the body was that of Mrs. Jim H. Cole, who disappeared some months before Mary Vickery left. Mrs. Cole has not been seen here since then.

The sheriff said he was inclined to doubt whether any of the principals in the Dabney case were implicated in the disappearance of Mrs. Cole.

Dabney was the only witness for the defense at his trial. He denied all of the charges, contending that he did not know the Vickery girl, and that if he, as a taxicab driver, had hauled her to a railroad station, he was unaware of her identity.

First Spring Day Brings Chilly Wave

With the advent Monday of the first official day of spring, Atlanta as well as almost the entire country was saturated with a continuous drenching rainfall, which in this part of the district especially, was considered a boon to early crops.

During the past 24 hours a total of approximately 20-inch precipitation was recorded, C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist, reported. The temperature ranged from 58 to 70.

Today will find the skies clearing, with a coincident drop in temperature to within 40 to 55 degrees, the weather bureau forecast. For the entire day cool weather will prevail, reaching its peak tonight, when a change will be experienced and a subsequent rise will follow.

The cold spell had its origin in the northwest and was 24 hours tardy in reaching the southland east of the Mississippi. Moderate winds today are expected to move the cool weather along and a return to balmy spring weather is anticipated, Mr. von Herrmann said. Although it is not certain, there likely will be one more frost in this section of the country, he said. The last frost usually occurs here in the neighborhood of March 30.

The rainy period which gained its inception here late Sunday was prevalent throughout the country. In the central west many floods were reported with Indiana the hardest hit. In the Hoosier State hundreds of acres of rich farm land above the Wabash river were inundated. The city of Terre Haute was part under water, while the Ohio river at Evansville had passed the flood stage of 35 feet.

Iowa and Nebraska experienced severe sleet storms. Damage to telephone lines around Iowa City was placed at $100,000, and in certain areas service was suspended.

According to Associated Press dispatches, rising waters of the Missouri river near Jefferson City, Mo., forced five farmers to climb a tree which had been surrounded by the river. They were rescued after several hours.

Two of the men climbed the tree when their boat capsized. Three neighbors effecting a rescue were thrown into the water and barely escaped with their lives. A government tugboat finally made the rescue.

Indiana Senate Starts Trial Of Judge Dearth

Indianapolis, Ind., March 21.—(AP)—Indiana's senate of 50 men worried by mixed emotions and doubts—some uncertain as to the legality of the action—today began trial of Judge Clarence W. Dearth, of the Delaware circuit, on impeachment charges.

Only the routine preliminaries of an ordinary court trial marked the first day, much to the disappointment of a crowded gallery. Out for the thrills they expected would develop in the first impeachment case tried by an Indiana senate in 92 years, many tired of listening to dry legal technicalities and departed.

The defendant, a stockily built, smooth faced man of less than 50 years, was present, stern and unsmiling even when greeted by friends. His wife, daughter and other members of the Dearth family surrounded him.

Representative Delph L. McKesson, a democrat of Plymouth, read the seven charges against the Muncie jurist. Practically every charge against the judge alleged he was guilty of corruption and other high crime, among them suppression of the freedom of the press.

HUSBAND DREAMS OF OVERSLEEPING, THEN DROPS DEAD

Cobham, England, March 21.—(United News).—"What time is it?" asked Edward Glasier, 63, green-house worker, as he shook his wife from her sleep.

"Three o'clock," she responded. "My God," exclaimed Glasier. He jumped from the bed and fell dead on the floor.

Lausanne Conference Seen As Aid to Religious Unity

BY HERB MCUSKER.

Warning: that the forthcoming world conference on "faith and order" to be held at Lausanne, Switzerland, by some 500 representatives of 87 different churches will not "solve in three weeks the problems of the centuries."

Sir Henry Lunn, of London, world famous publicist, churchman and philanthropist, before the Atlanta Priors club Monday night declared that the conference will result in a decided advancement toward ultimate unification of Christian churches. Some 50 clergymen and business men were present at the Capital City club.

Taking as his theme "unity" of religion, Sir Henry informatively traced through the ages various efforts made to unify religion from the first great conference held in Constantinople in 325 A. D., until the Stockholm universal Christian conference held last year and in which the English visitor played a prominent part.

"We are about to take a long journey in our efforts to establish unity," Sir Henry said, "and Lausanne is but a way station. Political conferences may easily correct problems of state but religion cannot reach its goal so easily."

"One of the urgent needs of this conference as well as of any similar conference involving such problems as will be present at Lausanne is coordination of spirit. By that I mean that every representative of every communion must go there in the spirit that will cast aside any ambition for preeminence. Rather it is necessary that the representative be reconciled to subordinating his open mind to the opinion of others; that each be prepared to testify as to those things which are of his knowledge and experience in order that the common good may benefit."

Relating how Christianity has gradually become unified to a great extent through the "underlying unity of all Christian religions," the distinguished speaker told of how it is a matter of record that in England not a hundred years ago, a certain Wesleyan min-

OFFICIALS OF TEXAS COMPANY MEET HERE

A banquet attended by more than 50 field representatives from the Atlanta district and several officials from the southern headquarters at Houston, Texas, of the Texas company, at the Ansley hotel Monday night, featured a one-day district sales meeting of the Texas company, manufacturers and distributors of Texaco petroleum products.

Among the principal speakers at the banquet were: F. T. Manley, of Houston, general sales manager of the southern territory; G. M. Worthington, of Houston, assistant sales manager; C. P. Dodge, of Jacksonville, Fla., district manager of Florida and J. S. Jones, district manager of the Atlanta district. Other officials present at the meeting were: J. W. Royall, of Houston, superintendent of the roofing division; D. J. Lindsay, of Houston, representative of the lubricating division, and B. E. Robertson, sales superintendent of the Atlanta district. Mr. Jones and Mr. Robertson had charge of the arrangements of the meeting.

The one-day sales meeting opened Monday morning at the Ansley hotel with various officials of the company speaking on sales policies and business matters. Following brief talks, an open discussion was held. Another business session was held during the afternoon.

FORMER CORNELIA MAN PASSES IN ARIZONA

Cornelia, Ga., March 21.—(Special) J. E. Barr received a message today that his son, Milton Barr, 24, had died at a sanitarium in Tucson, Ariz., where he has been for two years in an effort to regain his health.

Mr. Barr is survived by his widow and one young daughter; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Barr; one sister, Mrs. C. M. Miller.

The funeral services will be announced upon the arrival of the body from Arizona.

Unity Coming Gradually.

Relating how Christianity has gradually become unified to a great extent through the "underlying unity of all Christian religions," the distinguished speaker told of how it is a matter of record that in England not a hundred years ago, a certain Wesleyan minister frequently traveled the highroads on horseback and how a Calvinist his horse to drink from the same trough as that used by the preceding mount.

"But gradually unity has come into religion and this manner of thing has entirely disappeared," he said. "Unity in Christ is greater than ever before—there are greater things uniting men than dividing them."

Greater watchfulness of world events, not only locally but universally, should be exercised by Protestant churches, Sir Henry declared. "The clergy should not be content with knowing what is happening in its own denomination but should watch everything in other parts of the world. A little bit more geography would be a good thing for Protestant churches," he asserted.

Relating great differences existent years ago in England which have been abridged as a result of a series of conferences held from time to time, Sir Henry told his hearers how the leaders became cognizant of the danger of the various breaches and how they worked for closer unity. He told how he himself had called a number of small meetings, summoning authoritative heads of the various communions and of the great amount of good resulted.

"Only hope that the clergy of Atlanta will realize the great importance in the Lausanne world conference," he said, "and that this great undertaking will have the undivided support of all gathered here."

The Lausanne conference will start from August 3 to 21, 1927. The conference on "faith and order" is the outcome of a meeting held in Edinburgh in 1910, and from the start has been a cooperative project.

At the banquet Monday night, which was held in the Capital City club, the Rev. J. Sproule Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was toastmaster.

Tonight at Emory university, Sir Henry Lunn will address the student body on "Can Religion Save the World?" He will also deal with what Great Britain has learned from the

'Must Have 2 Ads,' Wayburn 'FOLLIES' PRODUCER ENTHUSED OVER SPECIAL EDITION Wires Junior League Heads

Would Ned Wayburn, the famous theatrical producer of New York, take an ad in the special edition of The Constitution which the Junior League of Atlanta is sponsoring on March 30?

The league wired the producer of its "Follies" of past years, wanting to know—and Mr. Wayburn wired right back.

"No! I won't take an ad, but I'll take two ads," was the gist of what he said. "Count me in right now."

United States since 1779.

At the Monday meeting it was learned that the English notable was confined to bed in Hot Springs, Ark., for eight days prior to his journey to this city. He has recently recovered from a severe attack of grippe and was compelled to cancel a number of scheduled appearances.

That's what Ned Wayburn thinks of the value of advertising in the mammoth edition of March 30, which will provide Junior Leaguers with a handsome sum with which to carry on their charity work among the city's unfortunates. And that's what advertisers generally are thinking, according to the burden of reports turned in to the advertising headquarters Monday.

Junior League members, daughters of Atlanta's most prominent families, are assuming direction of the special edition, selling advertising space, editing news copy, and taking care of all details associated with the publication.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy."

—Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.—(adv.)

INSTALLMENT L.

Besides herself from the stubborn strangeness of Cornelia's face, trembling with outraged affection and the disintegration of the world, Mrs. Marsh still caught at straws, like reason.

"What are you going to do about me, if you throw away everything for her? I've done the best I could here to keep things going. But I've done all I can. Her voice broke with self-pity as she bent to the coffee pot, but she began laying strips of bacon in the pan. For one thing was certain; guests must be fed. If I couldn't help her losing everything, I could never—never get you anything you—wanted."

"Why, how much worse it'll be, my daughter, if we lose the last cent we have!" With that final intonation of just dignity she broke down altogether; tears came, her voice rose. "O, it's been hard enough for both of us! We're not badly off enough already without her coming to ruin us! Why, you poor crazy girl—"

"O, no! O, please!"

It was Dulcie's voice, she had pushed wide the kitchen door, which had a weak catch and must have slipped open without the disputants noticing it.

"I didn't realize—I was just awful scared and I wanted to get to some one. I'll go right away," she insisted, as Cornelia ran to her. "But where can I go?" Her face crumpled like a baby's blinking at a Klieg light. "Everywhere I go people know me. Where can I go?"

She clung to Cornelia, even as she pushed her off. "No, now, it's all right. It's only a day or two, I'll just get Cummings to drive me way out in the country—"

And she freed herself.

Cornelia caught her tight. "Non-sense! They'd recognize you at the first hotel and—"

For the second time that morning the Bronx flat was transfixed by a bolt from the electric bell.

This time no one had the actual physical power to answer it. Moreover, they were trapped in guilty helplessness, that they really expected was that it would answer itself. That it was rather an announcement than an application and that, having that, it sounded its advent, the formidable figure of Lawful Might would merely appear upon the living room threshold. And, as a matter of fact, their expectations were practically justified. For, whether or not some one else was just going out of the street door the some one ringing certainly came in. Dulcie had breathed "It's papa!" and Cornelia, still holding her, had just asked, "Do you want me not to let him in?" when here came the sound of the living room.

They let the last vibration cease. Then Dulcie Jayne shook her head. "As long as he knows I'm here he can get a warrant." Suddenly she squared her shoulders. Stepping out from Cornelia she stood alone; in her little worn white face her eyes looked scared and bold, resolute. "I won't go! And he can't make me!" She nodded to Cornelia to open the door.

The person on the threshold, though his manner and appearance were, generally speaking, calmer than Dulcie's, peered into the room with a passion of eagerness as cool as hers and as bold; his face was white and worn as her own, as resolute. It was Henry Horner.

They ran together, Dulcie and he, with little cries, soul and body both finding speech, inarticulate, exhausted, with raptures of salvation.

Cornelia was to remember always how first, as their astonished eyes beheld each other, the pallor of their young faces, Henry's a trifle dirty, seemed to turn into pure light. Then that bending of Henry's tall figure till his roughened hair was on a level with Dulcie's fairness and they sank on to the arm of a chair, enfolded still, heart

The gas was turned down under the coffee pot, a fresh stream of steam curled into the pan. From the living room came distinguishable words.

"Darling, you're not gone yet! I've found you! I'll be with you! O, let me go with you, Dulcie!"

"O, yes, Henry, O, darling, do! I'll never go without you, never! O, how did you know?"

"I'll have to be secretly, of course. You won't mind my being in the steering, dear?"

"Just as you're along, Henry—"

"In a way, really, we'll be quite close together, considering."

"Darling, I'll make me just as happy as a honeymoon!"

Mrs. Marsh sent Cornelia to buy grapefruit for the wedding breakfast. No, she had forgotten Cornelia's terrible words. She would never forget them. But, with a heroism beyond that of an army with banners, she had accepted them. Among the forced marches of that day they were already falling into perspective with all the other acceptances of her life.

She made no objection to Cornelia, with some story of a bad tooth, getting to Henry's late. Nor did she regret that Henry, not finding Dulcie at her hotel and learning from the studio that she was not expected there and of the accident to Benny, had chanced catching Cornelia and information at the Bronx flat. Now that Dulcie was to sail as arranged, so that there was still hope for Independence features, she realized that to succeed in any business one must take some risks.

When it transpired that, terrified by the departure of Leland, the department of Lyman, the presence of Mr. Mack, and the notion of Dulcie in another hemisphere he had suddenly, out of pure wretchedness and panic, thrown up his job with Supremacy, leaving "Flower of the North" to wither among Alaskan snows and thereby taking an excellent chance of losing himself from every studio on the west coast, she did not think the loss of him as a sensible man, fit to be a leader in a new enterprise. She might, under pressure, have admitted that the appearance of this leader, savior and infant was not at that moment imposing, the natty Henry having tumbled out of his day coach from Chicago in such a state of rumpledness, with his round brown eyes so hollowed and his little face an unwhorl that it suggested the face of a dissipated through-conscious owl. Still, she would have asked what you expected, after a two weeks' push down the Canadian coast and across the American continent, with every connection askew, berths hard to get, the new, the crucial scenario called it "The Wild Dove"—wearing out his nerves worse than ever by having to be written all the way and the difficulty of turning his check book into cash creating a dark secret as to meals? Nor did any shortage suggest that he might be a poor match for a golden idol. Mrs. Marsh was a woman. She too, at seventy, knew love when she saw it and when it spoke she disputed it not.

BAD PAINS AND BILIOUS HEADACHES

"FOR about twenty years now," says Mrs. D. M. Collins, of Myers, S. C., "I have used Black-Draught at intervals when I would need a medicine to relieve a torpid condition, which was my chief affliction."

"I have been troubled with bad spells of biliousness. Often I suffered with bad pains in the pit of my stomach and nearly always these would be accompanied by bad headaches. These spells come on me every so often."

"About twenty years ago a lady friend of mine read about Thedford's Black-Draught in a newspaper. She told me about it and I got some to try. I found it a very good, reliable medicine for my trouble. It would cleanse my system of the poisons I was absorbing. "We have used Black-Draught constantly in our home for the last twenty years and have always found it reliable. My husband always uses Black-Draught for constipation and bilious headache. We can recommend it as a good, safe medicine, because it has always been dependable for us."

Thedford's Black-Draught is made of pure, medicinal roots and herbs, carefully prepared in modern scientific laboratories and contains the full, undiluted strength of the original ingredients.

Agnes Scott College Observes Health Week

The Athletic association at Agnes Scott recently observed "health week" as an incentive to greater interest in physical fitness as a side issue to attaining mental proficiency. During the week there was a drive for better posture, more exercise, and fewer cosmetics. At the end of the week a contest was held to determine what Agnes Scott had best withstood the evil effects of the stylish French heel on correct posture. Each organization on the campus selected from among its members the student who seemed to be its most promising prospect, and the contest was on!

From the large number of contestants, three competent judges gave first place to Mary Perkinson, of Woodstock, Ga., who was entered by the Athletic association. Miss Perkinson has since been elected president of this association for the term of 27-28. Second place was awarded to Sarah Sutherland, of Charlotte, N. C., the sophomore entry, while third place was won by Frances Fletcher, of Winston-Salem, N. C., the entry for the freshman class.

Camp Fire Girls

To Have Summer Camp at Toccoa

Toccoa Falls camp site has been selected for the Atlanta Camp Fire Girls for the forthcoming summer season. This announcement was made by Mrs. Tom Brooke, chairman of the camp site committee.

Through the Kiwanians of Toccoa with S. R. Carter, president, and other interested citizens of this city, a very beautiful site was found, which will give the Atlanta Camp Fire Girls a decided change of altitude and a different outlook for the summer season, where there will be mountains to climb with high waterfalls and rushing streams adding to the recreational value of the camp site.

The camp opens June 13 and continues three weeks. A. Forrest, president of the Toccoa Falls institute, is especially interested in this camp site project.

Toccoa Falls is quite accessible to Atlanta, in that there are 16 trains passing the place each day and the camp site is only one mile and a half from Toccoa. The town is reached by the Southern railroad and many trains are leaving in that direction from Atlanta each day.

Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the Atlanta Camp Fire Girls, expressed hearty approval of the Toccoa Falls camp site as a selection for the present, as there is much to give the young people the desired recreation for the summer months.

Davison - Paxon's New Store

Blasting of Trumpets Announces Informal Opening

Dedicated To Atlanta Trade

BY BESSIE S. STAFFORD, Editor of The Constitution's Woman's Department.

Atlanta women forsook bridge and mah-jongg games, laid aside golf clubs and household cares Monday, to visit the magnificent new Peachtree street establishment of Davison-Paxon company, affiliated with Macy's of New York, which was dedicated to the public with the blasting of trumpets at 9 o'clock.

The spectacular demonstration marked this step forward towards making Atlanta a half-million city in 1930. A quiet dignity prevailed among the thousands of people filing through the wide aisles, which at no time seemed crowded. Prominent Atlanta women, dressed in the latest fashion, expressing admiration of the architectural beauty, lighting system and vast panorama of exquisite merchandise, commencing upon the main floor, were the first to enter the new store, which is located in the Gate City, another notable factor in its progress and development.

Among the Shoppers.

Examining hose of exquisite texture were Mrs. W. R. C. Smith and Mrs. Murchison. Thence Mrs. Lee Lewman viewed the most becoming models in spring coats. Mrs. Jerome C. Beam and her sister, Mrs. W. R. Gillespie, were mostly interested in stylish street gowns of black and white printed silk. A dark blue georgette crepe, braided in lengthwise design, attracted the attention of Mrs. Paul Brooks, and her daughter, Miss Mildred Willford resembled a fashion plate costumed in a sports model of tan and brown. Over in the millinery department Mrs. Floyd McRae looked at a stunning importation of black straw.

Bride-Elect's Selection.

A June bride-elect was so entranced by a glorified evening gown of white georgette crepe, flowered in pink roses, richly embroidered in crystals, and so becoming were its lines to her figure that she immediately purchased it for her trousseau, adding to the wardrobe a wonderful cape to match, collared in tiny petals of white georgette crepe.

Lingered at the glove counter were Mrs. A. D. Adair, her mother, Mrs. John Clarke, and Mrs. Stuart Stringfellow, and, strolling through the temple of commerce, drinking in its store of six daylight stories has been erected, spacious in proportion and deep in its significance. It returns to Georgia the interest of princely New York merchants, whose grandfather, Lazarus Straus, first settled in Savannah, then Columbia, where he conducted a small dry goods store, later going to New York and becoming the head of R. H. Macy & Co.

A dream has been visualized and realized. Southern hospitality was evidenced at Davison-Paxon company Monday on both sides of the counter, and a wealth of flowers marked the esteem in which other Atlanta merchants hold the personnel of this great department store, dedicated Monday with informal ceremony.

WASH away constipation

... that is the scientific way to internal cleanliness

WHAT is the greatest of all cleansing agents? The answer is: WATER. You use water for washing externally. You should use it, too, for the internal wash.

Common drinking water would make an excellent laxative, but for one thing. It is quickly absorbed, and excreted by the kidneys. Hence, only a small portion enters the intestinal tract.

Pluto Water acts just the other way. That is the reason for its pronounced laxative value. Science knows that the mineral content of Pluto exceeds the mineral content of the blood. As a result, Pluto Water is not absorbed, but passes through the eliminative system practically intact, flushing and cleaning all that's before it.

That's why Pluto is so positive and thorough, giving results in 30 minutes to two hours. That, too, is why Pluto never gripes. The action is natural, gentle and harmless. Pluto does not cause habit-forming tendencies, nor will it weaken the system.

When you need a laxative, remember that the medical profession for almost a generation has recommended Pluto Water in preference to the artificial "drug" type of cathartics. Ask your druggist for Pluto, and you will always play safe. Bottled at the springs, French Lick, Indiana.

BIG ATTENDANCE
SEEN FOR OPERA

That the 1927 season ticket sale for Metropolitan opera in Atlanta, April 25-30, which will start on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at the Cable Piano company, 84 North Broad street, will be the heaviest in the 17 years of the music festival in the city, seems assured, according to C. Howard Candler, vice president and treasurer of the Music Festival association.

"The out-of-town ticket reservations at this time are twice as large as they were in 1926, which was an outstanding successful year," Mr. Candler said, "and should the local consumption of tickets proceed at the same rate, the 1927 season will be record breaking."

The box office at the Cable Piano company will remain open from March 24 to April 2 after that it will be closed for one week to allow for cutting tickets and will reopen for the single seat sale on April 11 and continue open throughout the season. During one week the box office will be moved each night at 6 o'clock to the city auditorium.

Beginning April 24, one day before the opera season, reduced rates will be effective on practically every railroad leading into Atlanta on the basis of fare and one-half for round trip. This rate will cover all points in Georgia, portions of Alabama and Tennessee, the city of Jacksonville, Fla., and many points in North and South Carolina.

Extensive preparations are being made at the offices of the association to handle the large number of tickets for the opera week. Positive announcement is made that there will be no increase in hotel rates in the city. Under direction of the association, posters are being distributed throughout Georgia and the neighboring states featuring opera announcements.

The association is sponsoring a series of educational lectures on the 1927 opera program which are being given in southern universities and colleges and before members of federations of music clubs.

Season tickets are as follows: Six-seated box, $250; four-seated box, $225; first 13 rows of the arena, $18; rows 14 to 25, inclusive, $10; rows 26 to 28, inclusive, $8. Dress circle prices are: First three rows, $10; remainder of dress circle with the exception of sections K, L, M, N, and O, $8.00, and sections K, L, M, N, and O, $24. Balcony prices are $26, $24 and $18.

By Dr. Thomas Boyd

McCORMICK'S ILLNESS
DEFERS LUNCHEON

Colonel Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, who has been in Aiken, S. C., for some time and who was to speak here Wednesday as the guest of honor at a luncheon of the service committee of the chamber of commerce, will be unable to fill the engagement on account of sickness, it was learned Monday afternoon in a telegram to friends of the journalist here.

The luncheon, which has been indefinitely postponed as a result of Colonel McCormick's illness, was to have been presided over by Henderson Hallam, chairman of the service committee, and preparations had been made for a large attendance.

Colonel McCormick is a senior member of the law firm of McCormick, Kirkland, Patterson and Fleming. Since he acquired the Chicago Tribune several years ago, the paper has shown marked friendliness to the south and southerners. Besides, his other distinctions, Colonel McCormick has had a brilliant military career. After a series of promotions and service on the staff of General Pershing in France, he was appointed commander at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

EDITOR TO RESUME
ATLANTA TRIP SOON.

Aiken, S. C., March 21.—(P)—R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, is ill with influenza at Periwinkle cottage here. Mrs. McCormick, who is with him, said today that he was greatly improved and that his physicians do not consider his condition serious. Yesterday, she said, his temperature reached 102 and some uneasiness was felt.

Mr. McCormick became ill while here for a few days en route to Atlanta. He had stopped over to visit Mrs. McCormick, who has been here since January. His physicians said today they believed he would be able to resume his trip in four or five days.

Aside from being virtually owner of the Tribune, Mr. McCormick also controls the New York Daily News and the Liberty magazine.

ANNE NICHOLS RAPS
MUSSOLINI'S VIEWS

"Mussolini, the great, has plucked a rose in the garden, I observe, from the perennial bloom of discussion. This time it is a woman—the inferior, the weak fifth rib of Genesis. It is the first extended interview I have read with the great Italian since the inferior woman made an attempt on his life," said Anne Nichols, the famous author of "Abie's Irish Rose," as she sailed on the S. S. France Saturday for London.

"In what field can woman shine as man's equal—in everything that is not creative, says the dictator, who says women have done delicious small things. He goes on to ask what winning he has ever created a great painting? He forgets Rosa Bonheur and Madame Le Brun. Can it be that he is ignorant of George Eliot as a creative artist? Did he never see Eleanor Duse, or Sarah Bernhardt in the roles they created? Is he one of those who failed to recognize the new world of Madame Curie? How about Mary Baker Eddy? But why go on?"

"The more virile and intelligent a man is the less need he has of a woman as an integral part of himself. Such is the opinion of Mussolini. Is that altogether true of the man of whom Mussolini is an apt pupil—Napoleon? Even on the field of battle there was Josephine."

"When forced by circumstances to earn their living, so long as they remain in their proper role, they are admirable. Well, that is interesting. Man, it seems, has failed in his ambition to keep woman in the home. He found her very essential in the factory, in the office, in the diplomatic service, in the great world war. Other men, excepting, perhaps, Mussolini, gave recognition to her equality by granting her the right to suffrage. The movement is now world wide."

"What would happen in a city like New York today if the women were to remain at home for 24 hours? In the country would be paralyzed."

"One has but to recall a few other famous women of history to see that Mussolini has revealed another trait besides actor, statesman, organizer—namely, that of humorist. What has he to say of Joan of Arc, Queen Victoria, not to mention Queen Elizabeth and Cleopatra? If he had Cleopatra today he'd yell for the asp. Only recently I read the story of a young woman earning a salary of $100,000 as the head of a corset concern, and corsets are no longer in style. Women have governed our states, headed our banks and rank high in the field of business."

"Finally, Mussolini says that woman to him is only the parenthesis in his sentence, and he is fond of sentences with parenthesis. A little bit old-fashioned is the extended use of the parenthesis, like the aside on the stage. Mussolini, you see, is the regular officer of the luncheon and he will be held as usual Wednesday at noon at the Ansley hotel."

NAPIER RESUMES
DUTIES OF OFFICE
AFTER ILLNESS

Attorney General George M. Napier has recovered so steadily from a recent attack of sickness that he was able Monday to announce that he will visit his office Thursday.

It also was announced that the attorney general had accepted an appointment as legal consultant for the United States Veterans' bureau, with headquarters in Atlanta. His marked improvement in health permitted him to accept these new duties, which he will discharge in addition to his duties as attorney general.

Famed Fiddlers Of Dixie Here
For Convention

All fiddle fans of Atlanta and vicinity who are planning to attend the fiddlers' convention at city auditorium on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights will rejoice to hear that the famous fiddler of Dixie, Duella G. A., will be on hand with his "Skillet Lickers" band to put out a bit of the music which has adorned many a photograph record in the past few years.

In addition to the "Skillet Lickers" a number of state champions and well known local fiddlers will push the bow in the contests before the prizes are awarded on Saturday night.

Some of the familiar names on the list are as follows: V. B. Everidge, L. M. Ward and Melbie Ford, who comprise the "Cotton Pickers" band and led from Mason; A. E. Everidge, champion buck and wing dancer of Georgia; Leroy Stevens, of Opelika, Ala., fiddling champion of that state; A. M. Andrews, of Pensacola, champion of Florida; Bill Chitwood, of Resaca, Ga.; A. A. Gray, of Bremen, Ga.; W. G. Keith, of Gainesville, Fla.; W. A. Brown and W. A. Linferfelt, of Atlanta.

In this list of names appears nearly every old-time fiddler, banjo player, guitar, strummer and chaser of note in Dixie and the entry cards are by no means complete. Charles Lock, secretary of the convention, who is maintaining headquarters at the Piedmont hotel, is being kept busy filing entries.

The contests are to start at 8:15 nightly and Secretary Linferfelt declares the fiddlin' is bound to start on time whether or no, which means just that.

Atlanta Regiment
Begins Early Plans
For Summer Camp

Preliminary details concerning the coming summer encampment at Camp McClellan, Alabama, of the two infantry regiments of Georgia national guard, got under way at the Ansley hotel Monday afternoon.

The two regiments will go into camp August 7 and remain for the customary two weeks' period. The Atlanta regiment and the Macon regiment will entrain on Sunday morning, August 7, arriving a few hours late and probably in time to make camp in the afternoon and begin functioning on training programs on Monday morning following.

Monday night's drill period was given over to discussion of property and equipment among company commanders, with staff officers in attendance, and a preliminary preparation of a training schedule which this year will be an unusually comprehensive one.

It was announced also that the regular officers' meeting and luncheon will be held as usual Wednesday at noon at the Ansley hotel.

Rain Halts Practice at East Lake Monday Afternoon

Many Amateurs Listed Among Open Entrants

Entry List Reaches 160 Late Monday Afternoon With More Than 200 Expected Before Opening Date.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

After making faces at the world in general and East Lake in particular for six hours Monday Jupiter Pluvius—on whom be the anathemas of all the sporting world—finally won his battle with Old Sol and the cream of the golfing world was diluted with water from noon Monday until the day closed.

And speaking of the cream of the golfing world is in no manner an exaggeration. Cream implying the best of anything it can be said that the cream of the tee tasters are on hand at East Lake ready to match mashes in the southern open which starts on Thursday.

Standing on the steps of the East Lake club house and watching the arrivals on Monday was like reading a blue book of golf. If we had sufficient space we might attempt to list here the blue bloods in the order of their arrival but let it suffice to say that all of them are here. If there is a professional of any great note who is not either in Atlanta or bound for the Gate City we humbly apologize. The field is not confined to the boys who get paid for their dirt digging either. Some of the best amateurs in the south are entered and of course the king pin of the whole flock will tee off when Bobby Jones starts on Thursday.

Despite the rain which drove the golfers from the course shortly after noon there was a crowded course during the morning hours and nearly all of the gang took at least one crack at the fairways. Most of them were playing two or three balls and failed to keep cards but a look at them now and then was sufficient to warn the duffer that he has no place at East Lake this week.

Conspicuous among the Monday arrivals who tried their luck at par shooting before the rain halted the circus were Emmet French, Leo Diegel, present southern open champion; Cyril Walker, Al Watrous, Frank Clarke, big Bob Macdonald, Bobby Cruickshank, Joe Turnesa and several amateurs of note. A few of the amateurs are "Polly" Boyd, of Chattanooga, former intercollegiate champion; Harold Calloway, of LaGrange; Glenn Crisman, of the University of Alabama, and a score of others.

The entry rolls Monday night held approximately 160 names with the prospect of more than 200 being in by starting time on Thursday morning. The big bumbino of the professionals will not be in until this morning when Walter Hagen is expected to place his much-feared name on the dotted line and there are several lesser lights still to be heard from.

The pro-amateur pairings for Wednesday's matches will not be made until today and The Constitution will carry a complete list of these pairings in the Wednesday morning edition. Jess Sweetser, amateur champion of Great Britain, will arrive today and will be paired with Bobby Cruickshank in the foursome with Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen in the Wednesday matches.

New Addition

Augmenting its staff to fit the occasion, Harlan Rohm, brilliant golf writer of the Chicago Tribune Press Service, will write daily accounts of the occurrences at East Lake during the southern open off tournament which begins Thursday, exclusively for The Constitution in Atlanta.

Rohm covered the amateur tourney at Baltusrol, New Jersey, last fall when Bobby Jones relinquished his amateur title to the taffy-thatched George Von Elm of Los Angeles. His accounts of the national amateur were brilliant and in sending him to Atlanta for the southern open officials of the Tribune Press Service expressed belief that he would produce distinguished accounts of the battle of professionals versus Bobby Jones at home.

Scenes shot by the camera at East Lake while some of the golfers entered in the southern open golf tourney, which gets under way at the home course of Bobby Jones Thursday, battled the falling rain drops and little white balls of rubber Tuesday trying to get in shape for the opening of the big gold rush. The photo at the left, top, shows Bob Macdonald completing a shot. Next is Leo Diegel, present southern open champion, socking one down the first fairway in his practice round. Emmett French is shown in the upper right-hand corner in the act of driving. Scott Hudson, president of the club, is shown discussing the coming gold rush with George Nichols, well-known Atlanta sportsman, who is entered in the big tourney. Joe Bydolek, Buffalo amateur, is the gentleman with the quizzical expression at the lower right.

Charlotte Club Begins Practice

Charlotte, N. C., March 21.—(AP)—As spring made its event here today 18 young men's fancies lightly turned to thoughts of baseball.

That many baseball players made their appearance today for the first practice of the Charlotte Hornets and began to get into training for the 1927 South Atlantic season.

Manager Ray Kennedy started the players practicing early this morning and in the afternoon he put them through the paces again.

Few familiar faces were seen today. None of last year's regulars was on hand except Kennedy, but the others are expected to arrive soon.

Glenna Collett Begins Practice

Pinehurst, N. C., March 21.—(AP)—Miss Glenna Collett, former national women's golf champion, started practice here today in preparation for the north and south tournament which begins Thursday.

Teamed with John Dawson, Chicago, winner of the golf coast championship, she played Richard A. Jones, Jr., New York, and Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J.

Miss Collett and her partner made a 73 while their opponents made 69, two under par.

PREPARING FOR BIG GOLD RUSH

First Test Of Mystery Auto Made

British Ace Gets 100 Miles an Hour Out of High-Powered Racer.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 21.—(AP)—The "Mystery S" racing car in which Major H. O. D. Segrave, British automobile racer, hopes to hang up a speed record of 200 miles an hour, was driven at a 100-mile an hour clip in its first test on the ocean speedway here today, but found the going too rough for an attempt to exceed that time.

The condition of the beach and slight mechanical trouble which developed in the big twin twelve-cylinder auto prohibited a workout at a higher speed. Major Segrave said, but another tryout will be held probably tomorrow to put the machine in shape for its run against time.

Westerly winds, breaking the waves as they dash upon the beach have put tiny ridges and long, rolling undulations in the sands that had the thousand horsepower monster rocking like a catboat in a storm as it attained a 100-mile an hour speed. It will devolve upon the weather, which must send a high tide and northeast winds to iron out the beach to billiard table flatness, to determine when the actual race will be run.

Some adjustment is needed in the driving chains of the automobile. Major Segrave said after the test run, but apparently there is no major trouble to be remedied. A slight difference in the tautness of the two driving chains was found, but otherwise the machine was pronounced in excellent mechanical condition.

DIXIE LEAGUE PLAYOFF SET FOR TONIGHT

The Pep Class basketball and the West End Presbyterian eagles will clash on the Y court tonight at 8 o'clock to decide the champions of the last half of the Dixie league basketball schedule.

The Pep Class captured the first half championship and a victory tonight will clinch for them the basketball title of the Dixie league for this season. Both teams are primed for the battle and both will fight to the last for a victory. Should the Pep class boys drop tonight's game they will get a return game with the West Enders as they hold the other half of the title.

DATE IS SET FOR SOUTHERN GOLF TOURNEY

Charlotte, N. C., March 21.—(AP)—The 25th annual tournament of the Southern Golf association will be played on the Charlotte Country club course probably June 14 to 18, it was announced here tonight by J. L. M. Scott, a director of the association.

Mr. Scott said he had received a telegram from Horace Smith, Nashville, president of the association, informing him of the result of a poll taken among

Spiller and Niehoff Returning From Trip

Promises Supplant Hope and Expected Ball Players—Bert May Play Second This Season.

BY TOM THOMPSON.

The big promise party all over now, Rell Jackson Spiller and Bert Niehoff are wending their way toward Atlanta, according to the best advices from Florida Monday. Promises have supplanted hope and expected baseball players in the cornucopia of the promise and patter pastime of Atlanta. It's a safe bet that when Rell Jackson figures how many peanuts and how many bottles of pop he's got to sell to catch up on the expenses of this Florida trip and then figures how much Bert wants a first baseman and a second baseman and some good pitchers. So far he has extracted a promise of a first baseman, a promise of a second baseman, and a kind of an orphan promise of a pitcher or two.

Dick Burrus is the first baseman promised. Either Jerry Stander, Billy Rhiel or Jim Partridge is the second baseman promised. The promised pitcher is a misnomer—possibly to proceed from the Robin camp from Brooklyn. The Cracker chiefs are thoroughly convinced that Florida is a land of promise, busted real estates to the contrary notwithstanding.

Burrus Needed.
The acquisition of Burrus might be a good thing. Rod Murphy is a good utility man—but there is nothing radically wrong with Rod as an initial sacker—fans will remember that that was his job on the pennant-winning Crackers of 1925.

Stander is essentially a hot corner man. That was his job with Brooklyn last year—irregularly. Bert dreams of shifting him to second, if he is the one dropped. Billy Rhiel might make a good man. Jim Partridge seems assured of a permanent berth in the Brooklyn infield. Combining the best features of all three of them, it is hardly possible that a better keystone than the Cracker skipper himself could be produced.

Therefore it would appear that even if the numerous promises emanating from the realm of sunshine and financially embarrassed property owners are fulfilled the Crackers will not be any better off. Bert may finally come to a realization of this and cop the second-bagging job himself again.

The promise of a pitcher came from Uncle Wilbert, who asserted that he might drop off a pitcher or two to the local club.

The elements, particularly the wet element, forced a discontinuance of practice at the field Monday. Kohlbecker said that if the elements are not still frowning today, the practitioners would be in through a nine-inning set as a windup for the game with the Newark club of the International league next Wednesday.

A practice day Thursday and the Crackers will go into competition with the southern open golf tournament for attendance Friday and Saturday when they take on the Rochester club.

A wire from the Baltimore Orioles, desiring an exhibition stand a inst the Crackers here March 31 was received at headquarters Monday. Earl Mann and Bill Stickey, the Spiller substitutes, elected to defer all negotiations with the Orioles until the return of Spiller and Niehoff. Likewise Adley Lorber will continue to look for the transportation he has requested from Vicksburg until the prodigal promise extractors come home.

Accidents.
Frank Welch, the outfielder, and Red Hall, the infielder, did not report for practice Monday. Welch injured his shoulder when he made a sensational, lying down catch Saturday back on the right field hill, and Hall met Old Man Mishap somewhere between Macon and Atlanta in an auto wreck Sunday night. Hall returned to Macon and telephoned Kohlbecker, who extended him permission to lay off until today. He received several cuts in the accident.

There seems to be complete lack of memory among those vitally interested in the "Cracker" exhibition schedule. They just can't seem to remember who they play and when—or perhaps they have never been told—but anyway for their particular information this exhibition schedule is being here with printed again.

March 23—Atlanta vs. Newark at Atlanta.
March 25 and 26—Rochester here.
March 28 and 29—Oglethorpe university at Spiller's.
April 1 and 2—Philadelphia Athletics here.
April 4—New York Yankees vs. St. Louis Cardinals in the 1927 revival of the 1926 world's series.
April 6—Washington vs. the New York Giants.
April 6 and 7—Atlanta vs. Brooklyn here.
April 8—Albany, New York, here.
April 10—Montgomery at Montgomery.

MAISON SALEM

Macon, Ga., March 21.—(AP)—A fourth automobile, reported stolen from W. E. Dix, lineman for the Southern Bell Telephone company, at Juliette, Ga., Thursday night, put Bibb county deputies on a hot trail tonight in the hunt for the slayers of E. B. Hogan, Macon broker, who was shot to death on a country road last Wednesday night.

The new lead, deputies said tonight, is the best clue that has been given during the course of their investigation. It has been definitely ascertained, through descriptions given by three different parties, that the suspects left Juliette in a small coupe between 10:30 o'clock and 11 o'clock Thursday night, after they had spent all of Wednesday and most of Thursday night in the woods near Dames' Ferry. The last stolen car, and the car in which the slayers are believed to have escaped, bore a Georgia license tag No. 142-310 and a motor number 9235737.

Third Car Stolen. The theft of a third car, a coupe belonging to W. C. Dorsey, which was taken from his garage at Lorraine the same night of the murder and abandoned at Dames' Ferry, led deputies to that vicinity for their investigation.

Euge Anderson, negro, residing three miles from Dames' Ferry, this afternoon told deputies that a man of small stature dressed in a khaki shirt, khaki trousers, leather leggings, with a rap cap, approached his residence and inquired if there were any cars for rent in that section. Anderson said the "little man" describing him as about five feet ten inches in height, wanted to know the name of the next town, the distance, and in what direction he must travel.

That was 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Anderson said that he could see the two companions in the woods some 200 yards away from his residence, but could not describe their dress.

At 10 o'clock Thursday, a negro known as "Red" told deputies this afternoon, a negro of the same description as given by Anderson and his wife, had approached his home in Juliette, inquiring if there were any cars in that community for rent, stating that he desired to go to Atlanta.

The negro said he told him that he did not know of one, so the "little man in khaki" motioned to his companions, waiting a short distance away, and were not seen by him again.

Thirty minutes later the Dix automobile was stolen, and witnesses said to have seen the car being pushed down the road by three men for a distance of some 200 yards, then turning to the right and driving off.

O. H. Leve, partner of Hogan in the brokerage business here, tonight announced a reward of $500 for the capture and conviction of Hogan's murderer or murderers.

Whether or not others will continue to hold Mrs. Tanner on the charge of murder is not known, but she will be kept in the Bibb county jail until her release is ordered by Solicitor General Garrett, officers said today. These latest developments in the case concerning the automobiles schools getting 50 per cent of the city council chamber and will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

The charter proposal provides for an increase in the city tax from $1.50 per $100 as at present to $1.75, and for division of the proceeds equally between the school system and other departments of the city government.

Whether or not others will continue to hold Mrs. Tanner on the charge of murder is not known, but she will be kept in the Bibb county jail until her release is ordered by Solicitor General Garrett, officers said today. These latest developments in the case concerning the automobiles schools getting 50 per cent of the city council chamber and will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Deputies questioned Mrs. Tanner several times today, but she made no changes in her story of the killing. Hogan was slain about 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night while he and Mrs. Tanner were riding in Oreco Hills, just off the Forsyth road, a few miles from Macon. Mrs. Tanner told a story of an attempted robbery, and described every detail of the murderer's actions before the shot was fired.

STATE ODD FELLOWS TO MEET AT GRIFFIN

Savannah, Ga., March 21.—(AP)—At a conference today of the grand master of Georgia and other prominent Odd Fellows, it was decided to change the meeting place of the grand lodge for 1927 from Savannah to Griffin. This is done for sentimental and financial reasons.

It is reported that the cost of meeting in Griffin will be much less than if the meeting was held here and it is desired that the representatives have an opportunity of inspecting the Odd Fellows' orphan home at Griffin.

While no announcement to this effect was made, it is accepted as a fact that the meeting of the Rebekahs of the state and of Georgia encompassed branch of the order will also be held in Griffin.

The grand lodge of Odd Fellows meets May 25-26.

Jersey Cattle Club To Hold Annual Meet In Griffin on May 12

Griffin, Ga., March 21.—(Special.) The Georgia Jersey Cattle club will hold its annual meeting and cooperative sale in Griffin on May 12. The section with the annual meeting and cooperative sale of the American Jersey club, it has been announced by Valdosta, Thomasville, Columbus, Forsyth, Griffin, Madison, Athens, Covington and Commerce will have cattle on exhibit here.

Dr. L. G. G. Hardman, governor-elect of Georgia, is president of the Georgia Jersey Cattle club, and D. W. Stith, of Athens, is secretary of the organization.

Representative Smarr, of the American Jersey Cattle club, will come to Griffin with other representatives for the annual meeting of the two clubs.

The Georgia Jersey Cattle club was organized for the purpose of working for the placing of pure-bred cattle on the market of the state and the annual sale will be the result of placing pure-bred cattle on many farms in this section of the state.

Oil Seep in Georgia County

COMMERCIAL PRODUCTION BELIEVED POSSIBLE

Is Flowing Natural Kerosene

While Georgia hasn't any commercial oil wells, it has in the northern part of the state an apparently new natural oil seep from which flows intermittently refined kerosene. Dr. S. W. McCallie, state geologist, reported Monday following an investigation of the phenomenon. The seep is located on the bank of Patula creek, nine miles north of Fort Gaines, and is about a mile above the creek flows into the Chattahoochee river, it was said.

The state geologist was called to examine the seep to determine the possibilities of commercial development of the oil found there. An analysis of the product, Dr. McCallie said, showed it was almost pure kerosene and containing practically no gasoline.

Such seeps have been found before, the state geologist said, but investigation invariably showed they had been "salted" by some designing person desiring to inflate the value of his property. Citizens of Clay county, however, vigorously denied, he said, that the liquid product of their soil was a fake. The oil flows right out of the soil on the bank of the creek, the state geologist said, the oil pocket apparently being sandwiched between the Cretaceous stratum of rock and that of the Tertiary period.

The seep was not flowing at the time Dr. McCallie visited it, he said, it apparently having taken a day or so off as it is now.

While doubting the possibility of commercial development of this oil, Dr. McCallie said he advised those primarily interested in the adventure to accept the offer made them by an Albany, Ga., engineer, in which they would be put to no expense in the attempt at development.

The proposition as was related to Dr. McCallie is that should the state county residents secure an option on all the prospective oil land, the Albany engineer would do the prospecting to determine if there is oil in commercial quantities, and if so, would call in an oil company to do the drilling. Should the adventure prove successful, the engineer is to receive a certain perpetual royalty on the output as will the owners of the land, it was stated.

BOARD OF EDUCATION TO CONSIDER CHARTER TO CONSIDER CHARTER

Valdosta, Ga., March 21.—(AP)—Victor Deane, president of the state Bank of Alma, was convicted here today in the U. S. court of embezzling $17,000 from the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta through the bank's association, a local institution, of which he was secretary.

It was alleged that he drew the money from the association for the bank of Alma, which was a private bank, which later failed.

Judge Tilton gave him three years in the Atlanta prison.

Rome Man Who Slew Brother To Be Tried At April Court Term

Valdosta, Ga., March 21.—Judge James Maddox, of Floyd superior court, states that the grand jury that met in January would be reconvened for action in the case of McKinley Edwards, held at Floyd county jail on a charge of murder since he surrendered there a week ago after he shot and killed his brother, Allen Edwards, the grand jury must be reconvened prior to five days before the April term of court, which meets on the second Monday in April, and the grand jury is scheduled for trial in the April term.

Wide interest centers in the Edwards slaying due to the fact that the slaying took place in the local court cases and because Mrs. McKinley Edwards was said to have been the cause of the fratricide.

District P-T. A. Meet. A number of state officers and educational leaders of Georgia will attend the P-T-A. district conference of Parent-Teacher associations, which will be held in Cave Spring next Friday.

Miss Agnes Harris, dean of women of Alabama Polytechnic institute, Auburn, will be a guest, and will speak at the afternoon session.

The state president, Mrs. P. H. Jeter, Decatur, is expected to attend the conference and speak Friday afternoon.

Mrs. S. S. Lanier, Rome, district president, will have charge of the program, and is to preside at the morning session. The afternoon session will be devoted to the discussion of the program, and is to be held at the district office.

Linsey to Speak. Judge Ben B. Lindsey, world-renowned juvenile court judge of Denver, Colo., will come to Rome to lecture at the district conference of the American League.

He will speak at the city auditorium and details of the program will be announced later.

BOYS' HOBBY FAIR PLANNED AT GRIFFIN

Griffin, Ga., March 21.—(Special.) The Rotary and the Orange clubs of Griffin will sponsor a boys' hobby fair in May, to be opened with "boys' day" in various churches of the city on Sunday, May 15. It will be the first event of its kind ever held in Griffin and promises to be a most important event for the boys of the city.

All the boys of Griffin will enter exhibits in the fair. Boys entering exhibits will be divided according to age and prizes will be offered in these age groups. Anything that boys have for a hobby will be accepted and judging will be done by the fair judges.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

THE FIRST ACTION OF THE CIVIL WAR IN WHICH THE NAVAL FORCES OF THE UNITED STATES TOOK AN ACTIVE PART OCCURRED ON THE POTOMAC RIVER IN THE SPRING OF 1861. THE VIRGINIA SHORE OF THE RIVER WAS CONFEDERATE SOIL AND THE FEDERALS FOUND IT HARD TO KEEP OPEN THE WATERWAY FROM WASHINGTON TO THE CHESAPEAKE.

WHEN THE CONFEDERATES SEIZED THE UNITED STATES NAVAL YARD AT NORFOLK, GREAT NUMBERS OF HEAVY GUNS FELL INTO THEIR HANDS AND ENABLED THEM TO PLANT FORMIDABLE BATTERIES ALONG THE POTOMAC. THE STRONGEST OF THESE POSITIONS WAS AT AQUA CREEK AND FOR A LONG WHILE IT MENACED FEDERAL NAVIGATION.

Naval Warfare on The Potomac.

TO PATROL THE RIVER THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HAD BUT A FEW ARMED RIVER STEAMERS THAT WERE ALMOST USELESS AGAINST THE POWERFUL SHORE BATTERIES. THE FIRST ENGAGEMENT TOOK PLACE ON MAY 29, 1861, WHEN COMMANDER WARD MADE A GALLANT BUT FUTILE ATTEMPT TO BOMBARD THE CONFEDERATE GUNNERS FROM THEIR EMBLEMMENTS AT AQUA CREEK.

COMMANDER WARD WAS THE FIRST FEDERAL NAVAL OFFICER TO LOSE HIS LIFE IN THE WAR. HE WAS KILLED ON JUNE 27, 1861, OFF MATIAS POINT WHILE HIS LITTLE FLEET WAS ENDEAVORING TO COVER THE RETREAT OF A UNION LANDING PARTY THAT HAD BEEN ATTACKED BY THE CONFEDERATES.
